INTRODUCTION

This volume continues where Volume II ended, that is, with family number 09-00667 and continues through more of the ninth generation, with the remainder of ninth generation to be concluded in Volume IV.

The compiler of this work had a search made at the College of Arms in England for information on a Tingley Coat of Arms but none could be found and nothing concerning Palmer Tingley or his parents without additional research which is costly and no assurance that any record is available. Palmer may have come from elsewhere via England. However, Mr. and Mrs. Weaver Jones, while visiting her home in England in the Fall of 1968 made inquiries and obtained this picture of the beautiful TINGLEY MANSION there which may or may not have any connection with Palmer Tingley.

"To the right behind the trees an addition has been built on but it is thought the above is as it was originally.

"It is now known as Tindall Hall, quite a large place on acres and acres of farm land which is being farmed by the people now living there.

"It sits well off the main road - surrounded by trees and a 'moat' (water). The 'master' and 'mistress' were away thus the maid could not show us inside. The maid admitted that it had once been called 'Tingley Hall' as she had heard the history of the place and that Tingleys once lived there.

"It was built in the 16th century and has been repaired several times. Part of the original house is on the left of the picture with the chimney pots on top, but on the extreme right behind the trees there is an addition or recently repaired section, the maid wasn't certain if it were a part of the original hall.

"Name has been changed two or three times since it was known as Tingley Hall -- was once called Tingel Hall, is Tindall Hall now. It is quite close to a village called 'BUNGAY' and on the border of Norfolk and Suffolk."

Perhaps many of us will, some day, be able to visit there and see it first hand and learn more. We are grateful to Weaver and Nellie Jones for locating and telling us about the old Tingley Mansion in England.

At this point the compiler would like to refer to page 7 of Introduction to Volume I, last full paragraph on page 7.

It seems to be clear now that Ben F. Dixon probably with the help of Raymon Tingley connected the Kinkades (Kincaids) to the wrong Ann (or Nancy) Tingley and the present compiler accepted Ben F. Dixon's work until she contacted Catharine (Mrs. John) Fedorchak who has done a lot of research in the Monroe County Court House in Woodsfield, Ohio.

The Court House has burned several times and the old statistical records have been destroyed but some court cases, dockets, wills, etc. still remain and Mrs. Fedorchak of 647 Moraine Road, Chesterton, IN 46304 had compiled 11 volumes of Genealogical records in Monroe Co., Ohio from whatever source she could find there and piece together.

Raymon Tingley's 1910 book does not show a marriage for Ebenezer 05-00010-05 but Marian Frye found his record in his pension file as it appears on page 47 of Volume I. Thus Raymon did not have the Anne Tingley of Monroe County to show as married to Andrew Kinkade.

Reference 72 proves that Benjamin Tingley was a son of Ebenezer since Thomas Marsh, his maternal grandfather, named him as an heir in his will, only son born as all others were daughters prior to 1801. So far nothing further has been found on him but it would seem safe to assume that he died young since Ebenezer Stansberry, next son in line, took over his father's property with his sisters and their husbands signing quit claim deeds for their share in their father's estate. Also the Docket record shows that Anne Square Kinkade and her husband Andrew were heirs of Ebenezer Tingley.

Tradition seems to be untrue in most cases and here it may have been woven into the story to show how Lemuel's daughter came to Ohio although her parents had lived in New Jersey and New York State, not Ohio. It makes a nice story and seems plausible but apparently not authentic. However, Marian Frye could not understand why Andrew and Anne waited until they arrived in Monroe County, Ohio, to be married as given by Ben F. Dixon -- normally parents would not permit their daughter to travel alone with her fiance in those days especially when such a trip took more than a day. It would probably require several days to travel from Lockport, N. Y. to Woodsfield, Ohio.

Ebenezer's record as taken from his pension file shows him to have been in Ohio near Woodsfield in Monroe Co. and had a daughter, Ann Square, who apparently married Andrew Kinkade (Kincaid) as taken from census records and from Monroe Co., Ohio Genealogical Records by Mrs. Fedorchak. There is nothing to indicate there were two Andrew Kincades in Monroe County. With Ebenezer's children sharing in his estate and Andrew and Ann Kinkade having signed quit claim deeds for their share, some of which was paid for by John Tingley, it would appear that John may have also been a relative of Ebenezer, and not the son of Lemuel either. Since he had no issue it is immaterial at this point as to whose son he was.

Children shown under 07-00189 should be listed under 07-00297. Their numbers will be the same but their line of descent will show them as descendants of Ebenezer and not of Lemuel. Thus, for 08-00684, p. 497 and 08-00685, p. 499 the line of descent should be (Anne^{7}, Ebenezer^{6}, Ebenezer^{5}, Ebenezer^{4}, Samuel^{3}, Samuel^{2}, Palmer^{1}). Likewise in Volume II 08-00686 through 08-00691 it should be the same on pages 1 to 4 and will be correctly shown in Volume III for 09-01465 through 09-01507. Such an error certainly does not want to be perpetuated in our Tingley Revision.

Ebenezer Stansberry Tingley's number as a child should be 07-00297 and the other children's numbers should be changed accordingly - the 00189 changed to 00297 for each of them.

To make the record change complete the 07-00189 after 06 Nancy under 06-00056 on page 50, Volume I should be crossed off.

Anyone finding any errors in these records or having additional records of any family of Tingley blood, is earnestly requested to communicate the same to the compiler of this revision, Mrs. Marian M. Frye, R. F. D. #3, Box 168, Elkton, Va. 22827, U. S. A., so they may be added in volumes to follow.

TINGLEY COAT-OF-ARMS DESCRIPTION

The compiler has made a hasty search at the Library of Congress for the Tingley Coat-of-Arms after having requested Nancy Halbert of Bath, Ohio, to make a search for her.

Nancy Halbert states that the Tingley coat-of-arms design can be found in BURKE'S GENERAL ARMORY which is in the Heraldic artists' language of old as follows:

"Ar, two bars wavy sa. on a chief, per pale of the first and second, a lion pass. counterchanged." This translated is: "Silver, two black wavy bands in the upper third divided vertically-silver and black, a lion walking colored counterchanged. There is no motto."

Surnames came into existence to give a more specific identification. The surname TINGLEY appears to be locational in origin, and is believed to be associated with the English, meaning "a dweller at or near the meeting place or court." Therefore TINGLEY probably came from the town TINGLETON.

The compiler found under "TINGLETON, ar. two bars, wavy, sa. on a chief, per pale of the first and second, a lion passant, counterchanged" in Encyclopedia Heraldica, volume 2, by Berry, which is identical to the description given by Nancy Halbert as taken from Burke's General Armory. Therefore, this is the description used for our Tingley coat-of-arms found in our volumes of The Tingley Family Revised.

MARY LOU TOURJEE has sent the description of a Tingley Coat-of-Arms which she had purchased from a South Carolina company dealing in Coats-of-Arms. That description is as follows: "Arms - argent, two bars wavy sable, over all in chief a leopard guardant gules. Crest - a fleur-de-lis per fesse or and gules. Never adopted a motto."

And, yet a third description was given by MOLLIE TINGLEY LEGG as follows: "Silver - shield crossed by black band with two black stars above and one below the band." Mollie Legg states that early records show the name was originally Dingle-Ley but changed to Tingley and is an English name.

However, MARY LOU TOURJEE states that she has seen such a coat-of-arms, but it was for name Boland --not Tingley. This makes one wonder if it were for the wife of a Tingley rather than for Tingley. According to MOLLIE LEGG, they are supposed to have come from France.

HERALDIC GLOSSARY

A Heraldic Glossary[548] follows which may help each one to better understand the Tingley coat-of-arms as given in the descriptions, the first two of which are equally good TINGLEY coats-of-arms.

ARGENT--Tincture of silver or white.
ARMS--Armor.
BAR--A stripe, properly horizontal, crossing the field.
CHIEF--Upper third of an escutcheon, or broad band across the top of the shield containing (theoretically, but not in fact) the uppermost third of the area of the field, is a very favorite ordinary.
COUNTERCHANGED--Tinctures of field reversed.
CREST--Ornament on top of a helmet or upper part above the helmet.
ESCUTCHEON--The shield.
FESSE--Wide horizontal band across the middle of an escutcheon.
FLEUR-DE-LIS--A heraldic device somewhat resembling three petals.
GUARDANT--Guarding, protecting, or on guard.
GULES--Red.
HELMET--Surety in defence--rank of owner determines the shape of helmet or head piece of armor.
LION PASSANT--A lion represented in the act of walking, the dexter forepaw being raised but all three others being upon the ground.
LION PASSANT GUARDANT--Is the same as lion passant except that the head is turned to face the spectator.
OR--Tincture of gold or yellow, betokens wisdom, justice, riches, elevation of mind.
OVER ALL--Above.
PER PALE--Divided vertically or horizontally (colors reversed).
SABLE--Black, means constancy, or more rarely, grief.
WAVY--Curving up and down as ocean waves or a banner flying in the breeze.
WREATH--A circle or ring formed of a light and a dark rope of silk, twisted together (as appears above the helmet).

C.; both are buried in Westview Abbey Cemetery at Atlanta, Ga. Adelaide was an artist; Dr. Tingley was an M. D. - a surgeon for Long Island R. R. & Poly-clinic Hospital, New York City. While catching a train to see a patient, he was run over before the eyes of his wife and daughter.

From Portrait and Biographical Record of Queens Co., N. Y. (Long Island), pub. 1896 by Chapman Pub. Co., p. 649:

"Hilbert B. Tingley, M. D. Health is the most highly prized gift bestowed upon us by Mother Nature and it is a matter of most vital moment that we should know how to preserve it or regain it when lost. In the latter case medical science must frequently be resorted to and the services of a good physician employed. Dr. Tingley is one of the leading professional men of this section and in the practice of the 'healing arts' has won golden opinions from all classes among whom he has labored. Dr. Tingley was born in N. B., Canada, and upon his father's farm in that province he grew up and obtained a thorough knowledge of the duties of agriculture. His parents were native Canadians and his mother died at the untimely age of 28 years, when Dr. Tingley was but 2 years old. Besides her sorrowing husband, she left four children to mourn her death: Amasa, who resides in Moncton, N. B.; Melbourne, who lives in Sonora, Calif.; Minnie, wife of Dr. John F. Harvey of Boston, Mass., and Hilbert B.

"In the excellent common schools in the vicinity of his rural home Dr. Tingley acquired a thoroughly practical education, which he afterwards greatly improved by a 6-months' attendance in a preparatory school connected with Kings University, after which he taught school for 2 years. He possessed a natural taste and inclination for the study of medicine, and with the view to making its practice his life work, he entered Baltimore University Medical College, from which he was graduated first in his class in 1889 with the degree of M. D., having previously studied privately while teaching school and in the offices of Dr. W. P. Bowser, now of Brooklyn, N. Y., and in D. C. Allen, a native of Nova Scotia.

"Upon the completion of his medical studies our subject went to Boston and was engaged in practical work in the Baptist Hospital of that City for some time, having previously had a year and a half of hospital work while in college, and later was a part of the time assistant resident physician there. From Boston Dr. Tingley made a trip to the west, visiting most of the southern and western states for the purpose of extending his knowledge and broadening his views by observation, remaining 9 months. The following March (1893), after his return to Boston, he came to Long Island, took up his residence at Oceanus and opened an office for the practice of his profession. Here he has conducted a general practice ever since and has met with a more than average degree of success. His patronage is large, and owing to the success which has attended his efforts in behalf of suffering humanity is continually on the increase. Dr. Tingley took a post graduate course in the New York Polyclinic Hospital in N. Y. City, graduating with the class of '94-95.

"The doctor was first married to the daughter of Silas Kirby, of Easton, Md., but her death occurred 10 weeks later. His present wife was formerly Miss Addie Rucker of Gainesville, Ga. The Doctor was a republican in politics, a member of King's County Lodge No. 511, F. & A. M., and of Arlington Lodge No. 394, A. O. U. W. For some years he was connected with the Baptist Church of Boston."

Child[25]

01 Mary Alice, b. Nov. 4, 1896, Rockaway Beach, Long Island, N. Y.; died Nov. 2, 1965, in York General Hospital, Rock Hill, S. Car.

Mary Alice taught Biology at Winthrop College for 32 years. The following obituary was published in the local paper there: "Miss Tingley was born and reared in New York. She received her A. B. from Shorter College in Rome, Ga. and her M. A. from Columbia University in New York City. She taught at the University of Pittsburgh for two years, Shorter College for four years, worked with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research for two years, and with the Cancer Memorial Hospital in N. Y. City for two years, before coming to Winthrop.

"She had been prominent in Red Cross work in Rock Hill since her retirement in 1962 from teaching at Winthrop. The year she retired, the Annual, 'The Tattler' was dedicated to Miss Tingley, described as a popular teacher with the students." Upon request the York General Hospital supplied her date of death. She is buried in West View Abbey with her parents.

08-00278-08 JOHN M. TINGLEY[9] (Obed[8], John[7], William[6], Josiah[5], Samuel[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), R. R. #3, Sackville, N. B. (Point de Bute), born Mar. 15, 1882 at Point de Bute, N. B.; married Sep. 29, 1908 at Jolicure, N. B., Myrtle Blanche, daughter of Bedford A. and Isabel (Chapman) Oulton, of Jolicure, N. B., born Apr. 11, 1884 at Jolicure; died Feb. 22, 1973, Moncton, N. B., hospital. John M. has been driving a car since 1914 when he got a model T. He has gone through 30 new cars and not missed a year driving.

Bedford A. Oulton was born Apr. 6, 1852 and died Jan. 25, 1907; his wife Isabel Chapman, b. Feb. 1, 1854 - d. Nov. 26, 1899, parents of Myrtle Tingley.

Excerpts taken from an article published in Sackville-Tribune-Post of March 22, 1972:

"John Tingley drove his 37th car to town last Wednesday, to thank those who helped him observe his 90th birthday that day.

"Still hale and hearty, Mr. Tingley shakes his head in wonder at the number of young fellows, 'only about 75' who just sit around and do nothing. He attributes his long life to keeping active outdoors and believes there is nothing better for one than fresh air and work out of doors.

"That's another thing, 'A smile doesn't cost you anything and it might make someone happy.' He says, 'All the youngsters out home call me John'. He smiles at them too.

"Out home is now Point de Bute Corner, where he lives after finally selling his former farmlands a few years ago. For many years he raised hundreds of bushels of potatoes and apples and sometimes sold them from door to door in Sackville and Amherst.

"He got his first car, a model T Ford, in 1914 and since then has had 33 new cars and three other second hand ones, including a couple of Essex. Some years he had two different cars, others lasted longer.

"For 22 years Mr. Tingley got lots of his beloved outdoor life, as he was a game warden and then both warden and forester. At one time he had eight men under his command and his territory took in all of the county from Memramcook East to Tormentine. He was authorized to operate both in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick as a warden, crossing the border if necessary.

"Not only deer, but most kinds of wildlife are scarce now, he notes, compared to years ago, although 'there are still quite a lot of moose'. In addition to illegal hunting he is inclined to believe the use of pesticides such as DDT has affected wildlife.

"An avid fisherman for many years, he noted he usually managed to get his limit and still keeps an eye on work going on along the Missaguash River, which might bring more or less trout his way. He has also done a bit of hunting in his time and figures he was better with a rifle than with a shotgun.

"His eyesight is still good, he only wears glasses to look up numbers in the phone book or other closeup viewing, and reads a lot, westerns in particular.

"Although his hearing is not 100%, he doesn't see any need of getting a hearing aid.

"Certainly there is nothing wrong with his memory and he is often consulted by those checking dates of local happenings or memories of early farming as when the Brooklyn Road was well populated.

"'Keep away from worry', advises the oldster. 'Worry is worse for you than anything else.'

"'I've had a long life, with some fun and lots of work, and when my time is up is not for me to say. I've still got good friends and neighbors, and that's important.'

"On his birthday he took the car out so he could say he drove when he was 90, and went to Port Elgin before coming to Sackville.

"The story is told of the time John Tingley, who was 90 last week, was approached about the chances of erecting a fence between his property and a cemetery next door.

"John considered the matter for a few minutes then said: 'The people in the cemetery aren't coming out, and the ones over here don't want to go in so there's really no need for a fence.'"

08-00284-08 EDGAR DONALD McQUEEN BLISS TINGLEY[9] (Joseph[8], Harris[7], William[6], Josiah[5], Samuel[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Tulameen, B. C., born Sep. 26, 1876 at Baie Verte, N. B.; died Dec. 16, 1952 at Princeton Hospital, Princeton, B. C., diabetes and asthma; married Sep. 26, 1918 by L. L. Masted at Milwaukee, Wisc., Ila May, daughter of Barney and Mary Elizabeth (Gilbert) Fiedler, of Milwaukee, Wisc., born Jan. 20, 1894 at Spring Valley, Wisc.; resides with daughter Ruth, at 3326 Cherry St., Vancouver 16, B. C. Their marriage record in courthouse in Milwaukee gives his age as 42 and his mother's name as Ruth Sayer[310]. Edgar was a R. R. man.

"Edgar Bliss Tingley left Baie Verte, N. B. shortly after the death of his mother whom he loved dearly. He was 12 years old.

"Went to Cambridge, Mass. where his Uncle Charles Tingley resided and went to work in a piano factory of which his Uncle was Superintendent.

"He joined the Cambridge port cycle club and started riding the bicycle, won honors for the club and was winner of the 25 mile roadrace.

"Riding with his head down his throat became infected from the asphalt of the road, and he began spitting blood. The Doctor ordered him to move to a warmer climate and when his relative Stephen Tingley of Victoria, B. C. wrote for him to come West, he joined the Boston British Columbia Company and came to Granite Creek, B. C. Worked there a year and his Uncle persuaded him to go in for road building for the B. C. Government. This he did and eventually became assistant Superintendent of Roads. This position he held until 1918 when he was married in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. After a honeymoon, he and his bride returned to Tulameen, B. C. where he had a large home and then decided to go to work for the C.P.R. This position he retained until his retirement. One thing he always regretted. He was rejected by the army doctors when he applied for registration, on account of his throat, and was very happy when his son joined the Army in the second World War and spent 4½ years overseas."

08-00322-05 ALEXANDER TUTTLE TINGLEY[9] (William[8], Caleb[7], William[6], Josiah[5], Samuel[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of North Battleford, Sask., born June 30, 1878 at Upper Point de Bute, N. B.; died Feb. 24, 1964, viral hepatitis, in University Hospital, Saskatoon, Sask.; married Apr. 10, 1912 at Regina, Sask., Maria Edith Amelia, daughter of John Wesley and Harriet Rose (Ross) Dobson, of North Battleford, Sask., born May 14, 1885 near Molesworth, Ont.; died July 10, 1964 at Saskatoon, Sask. Both are buried in Woodlawn Memorial Gardens, North Battleford, Sask.

"Much of this information is gleaned from stories my dad told and from his diary which he began in 1903:

"In 1895, when Alex was seventeen, he journeyed across Canada, via Canadian Pacific Railway, from New Brunswick to spend time with his Uncle Steve in B. C. He often accompanied his uncle as he drove the stage coach from Yale north into the Cariboo country. The names of places such as Yale, Lytton, Ashcroft, Quesnel Forks, are all very familiar to his immediate family. As one sees evidences of that old trail today along the mountain sides overlooking the Fraser River, one marvels at the courage of the men who built it before the time of modern engineering.

"After returning home, with his cousin Matthew Finley, Alex again went West to take up a homestead in 1903. Many and varied were their experiences. In Calgary they left the train and by horseback journeyed north to Edmonton. They passed through very beautiful ranching and mixed farming country, meeting some very hospitable people.

"In Edmonton they sold their horses and with camping equipment came down the North Saskatchewan River by rowboat to Battleford. They were plagued by sand bars and at other times found themselves shooting rapids. At Battleford, in the centre of Parkland country, they again bought horses, crossed the river on the ferry then in operation, and headed north into land dotted with lakes, hills, and timber for fuel and shelter.

"The two cousins went back to New Brunswick for the winter. In the spring of 1904, they returned to file on homesteads. Caleb (Kelly) arrived soon after, followed by his sisters Tilly and Mame in 1905. The girls taught school in the area. Charley also spent a short time here. He died of typhoid and the body was taken home for burial in the Baptist Church Cemetery in Upper Point de Bute, N. B. After Alex married Edith Dobson, a nurse, in 1912, his sister Janie, also a nurse, came west for a time to care for illness in the family.

"Alex and Mat stayed on to ranch and farm in the North Battleford area. Here Alex raised his family and in 1956, he and his wife retired to North Battleford where they lived until their death.

"Alex's diary tells of prairie fires, flooding streams, days in the saddle hunting stock, driving oxen, travelling many miles to attend church services, hard work and kindliness of neighbors.

"Incidentally, his own kindliness and good humour was quite evident through the years as he provided a stopping place for travellers and offered a helping hand to all who came to him in need. He was a man well respected in the community and served for twenty years on the local school board. His latter years were spent visiting the local hospital. The crowds who attended his funeral were a fitting tribute to the esteem in which he was held throughout the countryside." (Compiled by his daughter Ruth.)

The following is from the account in the Sackville paper under the date of March 19, 1964:

"When Mr. Tingley was 18 years old, he went west with his Uncle Steve Tingley, a man noted for his famous stage coach run between Lytton, B. C. and Barkerville in the Cariboo Country.

"In 1903 Alex Tingley came down the Saskatchewan River from Edmonton to North Battleford by canoe.

"In 1904 he took up a homestead in the Hatherleigh District which grew into his ranch of later years, where he ran several hundred head of cattle and horses. It was on the ranch his family grew up.

"Many sick and shut-in folk have cause to remember this kindly gentleman, who visited them in their homes or hospital."

"In August 1963 Alex and wife Edith were in Sackville, N. B. to attend the first Tingley Reunion. Alex was the oldest member in attendance" and probably traveled the farthest.

Margaret says: "After my mother's death in 1962, my Aunt Elizabeth wrote 'My sister was a lovely woman and how very fortunate you were to have her for so many years. We were so young when we lost our mother. I was only eleven, that was 66 years ago and I remember it all so well. I always think our lives would probably have been very different had our parents lived and our home not broken up when we were so young. For one thing we wouldn't have been scattered as far apart as we have been'."

08-00360-06 ELIZABETH JANE TINGLEY-MOIR[9] (Alvah[8], John[7], Agreen[6], Josiah[5], Samuel[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Winnipeg, Man., born Apr. 30, 1885 at Sackville, N. B.; died Dec. 8, 1968, at home in Winnipeg, Man., following a massive heart attack Oct. 20, 1968, spent 6 weeks in the hospital, then home only one week when she passed away; married Dec. 25, 1907 at Winnipeg, Man., Andrew (nmn), son of John and Alice (Grieve) Moir, of Otterburne, Man., born

July 22, 1871 at Luther, Wellington Co., Ont.; died Dec. 29, 1942 at Winnipeg, Man., cancer; he was an expert mechanic; Elizabeth was a school teacher before marriage. Both are buried in Elmwood Cemetery, Winnipeg, Man.

The following letter was written by Elizabeth to her cousin May Blanch, daughter of Henrietta Tingley Blanch, who lived in Lynn, at Edwards Court, Mass., dated Feb. 3rd, 1901, from Middle Sackville, N. B.

"Dear May: I received your letter and was very glad to hear from you. We are all well with the exception of the baby and he is real sick. We have had two doctors and they say he has an overgrowth in his throat and that unless he has an operation on it, his throat will fill up and he will choke to death. They are afraid he could not stand an operation as his heart is so weak. He cries all the time night and day and suffers terribly. Poor little fellow, I do not think he will be with us long.

"This is a terrible day. The roads are all drifted full and it has snowed all day. It is quite a while since we have had a fine Sunday. We have a new minister now, but I have never heard him yet. Aunt Elizabeth's are all well. Mr. Hillson's have sold their place and moved to Lower Sackville. Mr. Hillson is running a shop on his own hook now. I am not going to school now but perhaps I will go towards spring. I suppose you would be greatly surprised to hear of pa's death. It was a great shock to all of us. The doctor kept telling us there was no danger and that he would soon be alright. Everything went against him from the first. The medicine did not seem to do him a bit of good. Then the doctor commenced giving him morphine and that weakened him right down and got his stomach out of order. He suffered everything but oh he was so patient and he never complained. We were afraid the doctor did not know what ailed him and got another doctor but he agreed with the other doctor but did not give us so much encouragement. He just seemed to grow weaker and weaker and one day he said that it seemed as if there was just a thread separating him from the other world and that sometimes he did not care to get better. Then at other times he would say that he must live for his children's sakes. Just a few nights before he died he commenced to sing. He sang 'Jesus Lover of my Soul' and a couple more pieces and oh he was so happy. He said 'Oh, I've suffered a great deal but Jesus suffered more than I have.'

"He knew he was dying, but he was willing to die. He suffered all the afternoon, but when the doctor came they turned him on his side and he died very easy. He was conscious to the last. It is very lonely without him but I know he is in heaven and that if I live near to Jesus I will meet him and my mother there. I miss my mother more than ever now that he is gone. It seems so hard to have neither father nor mother. Walter came home for the Xmas holidays and he stayed to help Jim and so he was home when pa died. He is not going back to college this term. Has Zena been down to see you lately? I expect she feels terrible bad. Always when we would write to her Pa would say, 'Don't tell her I am very sick'. Do you think you will be down next summer? I wish you would come. I guess Zena is planning to come but it would be nice if you could come too. Uncle Joe's are all well. They are expecting Seldon next month. Has he ever been to see you?

"Well, May, I am writing a pretty long letter for me and as it is getting late, I must close and go feed my hens. Does your mother keep any hens this winter? Now you must write to me right off. Give my love to your mother. Your loving cousin, Elizabeth Tingley."

The following letter is dated May 26th, 1901 from Sackville, N. B.:

"Dear May: I guess you will think that I am never going to answer your letter and as I am not going to Church this afternoon, I will write. We are having some lovely fine weather now and it looks quite like summer. Death has visited us again and this time it has taken little Charlie. He had inflammation of the bowels and was sick only three and a half days. He was taken sick Saturday afternoon and died Tuesday night at 10:30. We did not think he was dying as he kept around the house and we thought it was only a cold. He took worse Tuesday and we got a doctor, but he only lived a few hours. If we had had the doctor before he might have got better, but we did not know. He went in his bare feet one or two warm days. All the boys did the same and before he did, and one day he went to the pond to fish at noon and waded in for some sweet flags. We think that is the way he got cold. It is very lonely without him, but I suppose it is all for the best although it is hard to think so. Poor little Charlie was a good little boy and I believe he has gone to Heaven to meet those who have gone before and although I miss him I will not wish him back for God knows best. The house seems so lonely now that he has gone for he was always so full of fun. I can hardly realize that he has gone. He was so well and strong and was to school the day before he was taken sick and Saturday he seemed all right till noon. It is only a little over four months since Pa died and how little we thought that Charlie would go so soon. Zena and Jim must feel awful bad to be away from home, but there was not time for them to get here for we could not keep him any longer than Thursday. He was conscious to the last and died easy. He suffered terribly that afternoon and the most of the evening. Walter went for the doctor at night and he stayed till a little while before he died. He said in the afternoon that there was not much chance for him. He suffered so much that when he died the look of it did not leave him but the night before he was buried he changed and a smile came on his face and he looked just as if he was sleeping. Uncle Clifford and Aunt Prudie and George Dixon were down to the funeral, but they went back that night and George went the next night. Aunt Mary has been very sick but is better now. I have been going to school until last week and am going again in a week or two. I am in the ninth grade and want to grade if I can this spring.

"I have not been down to Emma's since they have gone to housekeeping. If only they had Laura the family would be complete but I suppose you can't spare her and we must not be so selfish as we had her last summer. Does she ever favor you with a visit?

"Has Zena been to see you lately? I have not had a letter from her for a long time. I wish she would come home for it is so lonesome. Bell is very busy sewing and I am afraid she works too hard. Uncle George does not seem to have very good health but Aunt Elizabeth is as smart as can be. How is your mother and all of you getting along? Does your mother intend to come this summer? I wish you could both come and spend the summer. I want to go to Moncton if I can and Minnie is coming down, I expect. Fred and Mabel Lutes were down this winter and stayed a few days. The 24th was pretty dull this year. A lot of people went to Amherst to spend the day. I drove down to the cemetery in the forenoon and was around home the rest of the day. Mr. Hillson and Marinda are over home this afternoon I see. I have never been down to see them yet but I guess they have a nice place and Mr. Hillson has all the work he can do.

"Walter and John are busy farming. We have had a very early spring and some very warm days. Well May as I have another letter to write, I will close with love to all. Be sure to write as soon as you get this and tell me all the news. Try to come and see us this summer if you can. Your loving cousin, Elizabeth Tingley."

08-00368-04 FLORA MARGARET TINGLEY-STUART[9] (Alan[8], Agreen[7], Agreen[6], Josiah[5], Samuel[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Tingley, N. B. most of her life but resided the last two years in Albert, Albert Co., N. B., born Sep. 28, 1885 at Germantown, Albert Co., N. B.; died May 9, 1972 in Albert Co. hospital, Albert, N. B. Service was held in Harvey United Baptist Church where she was second oldest member and a long time member; married Dec. 14, 1910 in Germantown, N. B., Frederick Alvah, son of William Andrew and Harriet Rebecca (Stiles) Stuart, of Tingley, Albert County, N. B., born Nov. 8, 1885 at Tingley, Albert Co., N. B.; died Feb. 5, 1963 at Albert Co., N. B. hospital, both are buried in Bayview Cemetery at Harvey, N. B. He was also a member of the Harvey Baptist Church and Chairman of the Bayview Cemetery Committee. He had been a lumberer, high sheriff of Albert County, Alma mail driver for several years, and a farmer, lived on his mother's homestead.

Both had attended the Germantown school, although Frederick Alvah attended on an irregular basis since he worked on the farm during the summer, early spring and late fall, which allowed him to attend only during the winter months. Flora graduated from the Provincial Normal School as a teacher with a second class license. In doing this she followed in her mother's footsteps. It was common in those days for the girls to go to Normal School without formal high school. She, Mae and Dora all did it. Laura also went to Normal School but went to High School at Riverside first.

She taught in many schools in Albert County before her marriage. They lived to celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary and received greetings from the Premier of New Brunswick[480].

08-00368-09 HARTLEY AMOS TINGLEY[9] (Alan[8], Agreen[7], Agreen[6], Josiah[5], Samuel[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Saint John, N. B. and Montreal, Que., born Dec. 26, 1892 at Albert Co., N. B.; died Dec. 23, 1960 at Montreal, Que.; buried in Mount Royal Cemetery at Montreal, Que.; married Sep. 22, 1920 at Saint John, N. B., Edna Blanche, daughter of Adino and Lillian Victoria (Black) Erb, of Saint John, N. B., born June 3, 1901 at Saint John, N. B. Hartley was an automobile mechanic, a machinist.

About 1910 Hartley Amos and Richard Arthur, brothers, went West together. Hartley joined the Army during the First War but Richard did not, probably because of poor eyesight - being an albino with the traditional eye problems. He remained in the West and came home but rarely - only once or twice until the last 25 years or so when he came more frequently - nearly every winter which he spent with his sister Flora and her husband.

He lived and worked in many places including the Northwest Territory (Great Bear and Great Slave Lake). He had a large wheat farm at , Sask. at one time and may have been married a short time - if so, his wife did not live long. Lately he sold his farm and lived in Crooked River, Sask. Finally, about 1966 or 1967, he came East. He was unwell and quite senile. He was placed in an old people's home at Dorchester, N. B. This is where he died. He had had cancer of the lip about 1960 but probably was not the cause of his death. He was not too happy in the home. He was looked after by his nephew, Borden Steeves, a son of his sister Dora Smith Tingley-Steeves. He died March 8, 1971 in Dorchester, N. B. and is buried in Elmwood Cemetery, in the plot belonging to his sister Clara Mae MacFarlane, at Moncton, N. B.

After the war Hartley apparently returned East again where he met and married Edna Erb in Saint John, N. B.[480] and settled in Montreal. Edna Blanche resides at 53 Burroughs St., Lachute, Que.

08-00397-03 CLEMENT TINGLEY[9] (Benjamin[8], Samuel[7], Samuel[6], Samuel[5], Daniel[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Philadelphia, Pa., and lived in N. J., born Oct. 21, 1832 at Philadelphia, Pa.; died Oct. 27, 1876 at Merchantville, N. J.; married Sep. 11, 1856 at , Louisa Henrietta, daughter of Charles Love and Elizabeth Ellen (Slesman) Scott, of Germantown, Pa., born Mar. 23, 1837 at Roselawn Farm, Ross Co., Ohio[488]; died , 1916 at Philadelphia, Pa. He was a banker; both are buried in Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia, Pa.

Clement enlisted Aug. 23, 1861 in Co. M 28th Regt. Pa. Vol. Inf. at Philadelphia, Pa. He was transferred to Battery E Pa. Light Artillery, became First Lt. before his honorable discharge May 13, 1862 - see: Widow's application #527063.

"Clement's father, Benjamin West Tingley, left his home when about 15 years of age, when his mother married the second time. He commenced his business life in the wholesale hardware firm of Fassitt. Subsequently he was of the firm Robins, Tingley & Co. Wholesale Dry Goods later changed to Tingley, Caldwell & English. He was very successful and in the 1850's formed with his brother-in-law, John Wilson, and his son Clement the firm Tingley, Wilson & Co. - bankers. In 1856 this firm lost very heavily, through the failure of a large customer and injudicious loans made by Mr. Wilson in the absence of the other partners resulting in the dissolution of the firm. As the monied man of the firm Benjamin W. Tingley was a heavy loser though by no means crippled and for many years he was a director and Vice President of the Mechanics National Bank remaining so until the time of his death.

"When he came to Philadelphia as a boy he was influenced by the members of the firm of Fassitts, who were strong Presbyterians, so became a member of that body. He was connected with the First Presbyterian Church and subsequently with the Clinton St. Church. He held the office of Trustee but could never be persuaded to become an elder, though always taking an active interest in all church work.

"In his early life Clement was with his father in the firm of Tingley, Caldwell and English and later a member of the firm Tingley, Wilson & Co. bankers. Upon the dissolution of this firm he became a stock broker. At the outbreak of the rebellion he volunteered and was appointed First Lieutenant in the 28th Regt. Pa. Vols. He was shortly transferred to Independent Battery E (Knapp's) Pa. Artillery as First Lieutenant and served with this command in operations along the Potomac, until injured by a fall from his horse, which caused his honorable discharge for disability. He never fully recovered from the effects of this fall and his death was finally caused by the resultant disease.

"He was a member of the Loyal Legion, Commandry of Pa., was also a member of the Masonic Fraternity. He always took an active interest in church work as a member of the Episcopal Church, was one of the incorporators of Grace Church of Mt. Airy. Subsequently a vestryman of St. Andrews Church, West Philadelphia. He had an excellent bass voice and usually sang in the choir of the church he attended. He was very social in his tastes and was universally liked by those who came in contact with him. Though a comparatively young man at the time of his death, he would frequently tell of the great changes that had taken place in Philadelphia within his knowledge. When he was a boy the stages, that served the purpose of the modern trolly car, stopped at Broad and Arch Sts., going no further west and when his father removed from Pine St. above Seventh to a new row of houses built on Arch St. between 15th and 16th streets his friend considered that he was going quite out of town".[497]

"102nd General Assembly, H. R. NO.
Regular Session
1957-1958, Mr. Kile

RESOLUTION

To pay tribute to a former stenographer in the House of Representatives.

Whereas, Approximately sixty-one years ago at the regular sessions of the House of Representatives in the years 1896 and 1898, Melissa Bell Ramsey was employed in the capacity of stenographer; and

Whereas, at the 72nd and 73rd General Assemblies there were six stenographers and 106 members; and

Whereas her brother, Honorable James W. Bell, now deceased, a Republican school teacher from Madison County, served as a Representative during the above-named sessions; therefore be it

Resolved, that, in view of her services to the House of Representatives and her long and fruitful life, we, the members of the 102nd General Assembly, adopt this Resolution and cause a copy thereof to be spread upon the Journal; and be it further

Resolved, that the clerk of the House of Representatives transmit a properly authenticated copy of this Resolution to Mrs. S. N. Ramsey, 494 Nashua Avenue, Columbus, Ohio."

Jane came to the vicinity of Ionia, Mich., in 1857, before her father, who came in 1862.

"Nathaniel Ball continued a member of his father's household until reaching his majority, receiving a limited education in the district school, and becoming familiar with farm pursuits. At this age he started out for himself and followed farming and carpentering in Ionia Co., this state, and for a period of ten years. During this time he purchased and sold three different farms, and returning to Rollin Twp., he took up his residence on the old place and continued with his parents during their lifetime. After the death of his mother he purchased the interest of the other heirs in the property, and is still in possession of the original homestead. To this he added 30 acres by a subsequent purchase and also had a farm further south. His only brother, William H., remained a resident of Rollin Twp.

"Mrs. Ball was a lady highly esteemed by her neighbors, and with her husband was a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and an active worker in the Ladies' Missionary Society. Mr. Ball was a Republican in politics and gave his support to the cause of temperance. The educational and religious institutions of this section have ever found in him a steadfast and substantial friend." 08-00567-03 ALANSON BUTLER TREAT[9] (Nancy[8], Samuel[7], Daniel[6], Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Adrian, Mich., born Jan. 20, 1847 at Adrian, Mich.; died at ; married Aug. 8, 1872 at Napoleon, Jackson Co., Mich., Clarinda (Clara) Matilda, daughter of Richard and Matilda (Bradford) Lincoln, of Spring Harbor, Mich., born Apr. 22, 1849 at Napoleon, Mich.; died at ; he was a druggist in Adrian, Mich.

Alanson B. Treat was a child of his father's first marriage and was reared to manhood at the homestead where he was born. His early studies were conducted in the district schools, and later he attended Raisin Valley Seminary. Upon completing his studies, he returned to the farm, where he remained until twenty-three years of age, then took up his residence in the town and engaged as a clerk for the drug firm of Stephenson Bros. The next year he commenced in business for himself at the location - No. 16 Main Street, where he kept a large and finely assorted stock of drugs, medicines, oils, paints, etc. He ranked among the leading business men of the town, and followed those methods by which he gained an honest foothold among his compeers. Politically, he was a stanch adherent of the Democratic Party. He cast his first Presidential vote for Horatio Seymour, and was a warm admirer of the National Executive at that time. Socially he belonged to the I.O.O.F., being a member in good standing of Adrian Lodge No. 8.

The family residence, pleasantly located on Allis St., was a neat and substantial structure, and both within and without gave evidence of refined tastes and an abode replete with all the comforts of life. We subjoin the genealogy of this branch of the Treat family, which is a most important record, and the preservation of which is one of the most forcible illustrations of the intelligence and forethought of the progenitors of Alanson B. Treat.

Richard Treat, born about 1590, in England, died in 1669, in Wethersfield, Conn.; he was a very wealthy and influential man, and one of the patentees of Connecticut in 1662. He had three sons and five daughters; two of the latter married patentees. His son Robert Treat, was born about 1622, in England, and died July 12, 1710, in Milford, Conn.; he was the greatest of our Colonial Governors, being Governor and Lieutenant Governor of Connecticut for a period of thirty years, and was the founder of Newark, N. J. He had four sons and three daughters. One son, Capt. Joseph Treat, was born Sep. 17, 1662 in Milford, Conn., and died there Aug. 9, 1721. He was the father of seven sons and five daughters. His son Stephen was born Oct. 10, 1715 in Milford and died Nov. 13, 1794 in Middletown, Conn.; his family consisted of three sons and six daughters.

His son, Stephen Treat Jr. was born May 26, 1747 in Middletown, and became father of eight sons and seven daughters. The record of his death is lost. His son, Hosea Treat, born June 8, 1781, in Middletown, Conn., died Sep. 17, 1818, in Holland Patent. He was married Apr. 4, 1802 to Hannah Bonfoey, who after his death became the wife of Obediah Platt. Among the eight children was his son, Butler Treat, Sr. and the father of Alanson. He was married to his second wife, Anna Euritt, June 14, 1849 and to the third, Marietta Vedder, Mar. 6, 1861. See: History and Biographical Record of Lenawee Co., Mich.

08-00587-02 JOHN BEERS TINGLEY[9] (William[8], Jonathan[7], Levi[6], Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Rockford, Mercer Co., Ohio, born Apr. 15, 1825 at Hamilton Co., Ohio; died Jan. 7, 1903 at Rockford, Ohio[507]; married Dec. 8, 1857 at Hamilton Co., Ohio[506], Martha Jane, daughter of Jacob A. and Priscilla (Steward) Baltzell, of Hamilton Co., Ohio, born Oct. 18, 1835 at Hamilton Co., Ohio; died June 3, 1898 at Rockford, Ohio, stroke; both are buried in Mt. Olive Cemetery 2 or 3 miles N.E. of Rockford, Ohio.

He served in the Mexican War and was a pensioner, Certif. #12255.

The following was supplied by Lola Dudgeon from: History of Mercer County, Ohio, p. 576, by A. W. Bowen, published in 1896.

"John Beers Tingley was reared on his father's farm in Hamilton Co. He was educated while at home in the public schools and at the age of 21 began working for himself. In 1847 he enlisted in Company C, First U.S. Infantry at Newport, Ky. and went to Mexico, arriving there by way of New Orleans, in March of that year. From New Orleans he was transported on shipboard to Brazos and thence to Lebos Island, where was then the army of Gen. Scott. After remaining there several weeks he went by ship to Vera Cruz and participated in the attack on that city. After the surrender of Vera Cruz the regiment in which Mr. Tingley was a soldier was stationed there as a garrison, and remained until the fall of 1848. He was then taken ill and sent home via New Orleans arriving home in the winter of 1848-49. From the time of his arrival home until 1852 he worked upon the farm and then went to California, where he remained five years, returning in July 1857.

"The following December 8, he married Miss Martha Jane Baltzell, who was born in Hamilton Co., Ohio, Oct. 18, 1834. She is a daughter of Jacob A. and Priscilla Steward Baltzell, the former of whom was born in Hamilton County, Ohio, in July 1808 and was a son of Peter and Savilla Crepps Baltzell. Peter Baltzell was a native of Pennsylvania and a farmer. He was an early settler in Ohio, and one of the typical pioneers of the state. His wife Savilla Crepps was born in Philadelphia, Pa. and was one of the children that strewed flowers in front of Washington and his troops on their triumphal march through that city. After their marriage, Peter Baltzell and his wife removed to Hamilton Co., Ohio, entered land and lived thereon during the rest of his days ---------- Jacob A. Baltzell was reared a farmer, in Hamilton County and was married to Priscilla Steward, who was born in Hamilton Co., Feb. 8, 1808 and was a daughter of John and Nancy Clark Steward."

He also served in the Civil War, having enrolled Feb. 14, 1865 in Captain Alexander Gable's Co. D 193 Regt. Ohio Inf. Vol. as private; was discharged at Winchester, Va. Aug. 4, 1865[131].

08-00591-01 VIOLA MARTHA WASHINGTON TINGLEY-DICKEY[9] (Uriah[8], Benjamin[7], Levi[6], Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Fairmount, Grant Co., Ind. from 1890 until her death, born Feb. 22, 1840 at Harrisburg, Fayette Co., Ind.; died Sep. 17, 1909 at Fairmount, Grant Co., Ind.; married Nov. 18, 1863 by Elder R. L. Howe at Harrisburg, Fayette Co., Ind., John Miller, son of William and Jane (Miller) Dickey, of Fayette Co., Ind., born Aug. 31, 1834 at Fayette Co., Ind.; died July 21, 1915, aged 80 yrs., at home, Fairmount, Grant Co., Ind., probably buried with his wife in Park Cemetery, Fairmount, Ind.[508]

"Martha and John M. Dickey moved to their new home in Grant County in 1864, and united with the Church of Christ, worshipping at Rigdon. They removed to Fairmount in 1890, where Mrs. Dickey lived till death called her.

"From the day she yielded herself in obedience to the Savior till the close of life, a period of forty-five years, she lived a consistent Christian life and walked worthy of her holy calling. She gave the church her most earnest and best efforts. She was also much interested in the great cause of temperance, being a member of the W.C.T.U. and the Orphans' Home Board.

"We offer no fulsome eulogy in what is here written, but we most truly say that a dutiful and loving wife, a kind neighbor and consistent Christian has left off the tenement of clay, ceased the struggles with the stern realities of life, and entered the Glorious Land, 'the City Fair', into a full realization of what it means to be there.

"Hence the appropriate lines of the poet:

'Life labors done, so sinks the clay,
Light from its load the spirit flies,
While heaven and earth combine to say,
'How blessed the righteous when he dies.'

"Funeral services were conducted by W. W. Otey, of Lynn, Ind., minister of the Church of Christ, after which the remains were laid to rest in Park cemetery, J.M.D."[232]

08-00591-05 WALTER SCOTT TINGLEY[9] (Uriah[8], Benjamin[7], Levi[6], Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Covington, Ky., born Mar. 2, 1847 at Connersville, Ind.; died May 6, 1910 at Dayton, Ky., Speer Hospital; married May 13, 1874 by Elder Wm. F. Black in Christian Chapel, Indianapolis, Ind., Harriet Celestine, daughter of and Harriet (Davidson) Hillis, of Greensburg, Ind., born at ; died Jan. 7, 1910 at home in Covington, Ky.; both are buried with their two children in South Park Cemetery in Greensburg, Ind.[508] Walter was a physician and minister of the Christian church from 1873-88; received his A.B. degree in 1872, Butler College and his M.D. in 1884 from Ind. Medical College; he was a representative in the Kentucky Legislature. He also lived in Indianapolis, Evansville and Greensburg, Ind.

His obituary as written by his friend J. W. Hackleman:

"Walter S. Tingley is dead! The words sound strangely in our ears; it seems so short a time ago, when, with firm step, glowing eyes, so young, so full of promise, he entered the pulpit in the Christian church at Fairview and in a clear and logical way began to preach the Gospel of Christ to a sinful world. His life, like every other life, could be summed up in a few brief lines. When born, where lived, what did, when and where died? But obituaries are written not to fill the newspapers, nor gratify the appetite for news, but to satisfy the loving hearts that ache with their sense of loss. Surely he had many friends. I at least know of one. Boys in the same community, side by side we listened to the 'old sweet story' and, side by side we made our confession. I knew him so well. He was earnest and true, brave and unflinching against wrong in any form. The passing years brought to him many trials. Little children, sweet and dear, were laid in the grave. The beautiful wife of his youth was laid down by their side, after years of weakness and much suffering. Fortune, if it did not frown, bestowed few favors. In connection with his ministerial efforts he practiced medicine for over thirty years, and, in every changing vicissitude he maintained his high pure integrity, his unflinching faith in God, his sincere love for the blessed Christ.

"From a letter written to me but a short time ago, I quote these words: 'The older I grow, the fuller and deeper I come in sympathy with the sufferings of Christ.' These words, written in a letter to an old friend bespeak the man!

"The sun set early, he was yet in his prime but--'The Lord knoweth the way of the righteous.'

"It is scarcely more than a year since his wife passed from earth and now, May 6, 1910, W. S. Tingley died. Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last days be like his."

08-00591-13 LINCOLN KERR TINGLEY[9] (Uriah[8], Benjamin[7], Levi[6], Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Connersville, Ind., born Sep. 16, 1866 at Harrisburg, Ind.; died at ; married first Sep. 24, 1889 by Elder Walter Tingley, brother of the groom, at home of the bride's parents, Harrisburg, Ind., Cora Clyde, daughter of Enoch and Sarah (Scott) Caldwell, of Bentonville, Ind., born Oct. 12, 1865 at Harrisburg, Ind.; died May 31, 1902 at Connersville, Ind.; married second June 30, 1904 by J. C. Burkhart at Connersville, Ind., Ella May, daughter of Samuel and Lucinda (Darby) Crage, of Nulls Mills, Ind., born Dec. 27, 1871 at Nulls Mills; died Apr. 2, 1938 at Connersville, Ind. Ella May was a school teacher, member of Central Christian Church and member of Mary Huxtable W.C.T.U. She taught school ten years before her marriage; took her training at Terre Haute, Ind. See: Who's Who in America 1914-15. He was a train dispatcher for C. H. & D.; later a bank cashier.

"His parents were members of the Christian Church. Sturdy in physical constitution and sturdy in character, his father, Dr. Uriah B. Tingley, exemplified those qualities of true manhood which make life noble and gain the confidence of mankind. Unswerving in the principles of his convictions, he was always the champion of freedom, justice, truth, and honesty, not only in his Republican political affiliations, but in all the affairs of life.

"He was a great reader, a deep thinker, and independent in his conclusions. Though he made no public profession, he was a believer in christianity and a student of the scriptures.

"He was inspector of elections, or township trustee, for many years, but being naturally unassuming and undemonstrative, he sought no public office or emoluments, but was satisfied to live a useful life in the place where, for sixty years, he administered to all.

"How many, now past middle life, can recall the familiar figure of the pioneer physician, as, on horseback, he ploughed through the mud or the winter snows with the ever-present saddle bags, by the contents of which, with his excellent judgment and steady nerve, he shed healing and blessing far and near.

"On Saturday, at noon, he passed peacefully away, after an illness of but two or three days. His wife, Elizabeth Kerr Tingley, so long as she was physically able visited the sick, was a kind neighbor and no one ever asked benevolence at her hand and went away unsupplied. But who can estimate the value of a life like theirs, the service rendered, or their influence upon the principles and character of the community, where, for so long a time, they stood like pillars of strength?

THE TENT IS FOLDED.

The tent is folded, lay it away,
Full many a year it bent to the blast,

But the tenant is gone,
And 'tis folded at last.

The cords were loosened, the stakes were bent,
But 'tis folded at last, and the warfare is o'er.
By the winter of age 'twas tossed and rent,
But the chill of the blast can harm it no more.

Ended forever is the battle of life,
So we'll tenderly, reverently lay it away,
Till the hand of the Maker shall raise it anew,
For what is the tent but the mortal clay?

And we'll hope for the day when at trumpet call
The tenant departed, shall return once more,
Then, grant dear Lord, that loved ones all
United may be, on the heavenly shore.

Helene was a member of the Regular Baptist Church; Central W.C.T.U. of Connersville, Ind.; lived in her grandfather Tingley's home in Connersville, Ind., R. R. #1; entertained groups: S.S., school, scouts, etc. by showing them heirlooms - treasures the pioneers used. In 1973, she had fallen and broken her hip but was doing well when the compiler, Marian Frye, visited her in Connersville Nursing Home. It was the first time she had ever been away from home so she was terribly homesick. She told how she had been given permission to return home because she had been so homesick. Before a week had passed she decided that she must return to the Nursing Home because she was not able to wait on herself and take care of her home. There was no one there to care for her. When Marian Frye stopped by to see her she had returned to the Nursing Home and said, "Let's face it! I am no longer young so shall probably never return to my home again." She didn't! Helene is buried near her parents in Lick Creek Cemetery, Harrisburg, Ind.

08-00617-02 CLOE STANSBERRY TINGLEY[9] (William[8], Ebenezer[7], Ebenezer[6], Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Sand Springs, Okla., born Jan. 4, 1880 at Sullivan Co., Mo.; died July 13, 1945 at Tulsa, Okla., St. Johns Hospital, ulcer and pneumonia; married Sep. 8, 1918 at Waco, Texas, Nancy Elizabeth, daughter of George Edward and Frances Louise (Moge) Baker, of Beaumont, Texas, born Nov. 1, 1895 at Beaumont, Texas; died Aug. 19, 1927 at Sand Springs, Okla., steam burn from pressure cooker; both are buried in Woodland Cemetery, Sand Springs, Okla. He was a civil engineer and Nancy was a nurse (surgical).

"Cloe had polio at 18 months of age and walked like a drunk, so his usual 'greeting' when asked 'How are you today?' was 'Drunk as usual!' with a salute and a beaming smile.

"As a child, he had a real rough time with walking -- he was 6 years old and going to school. In the winter, he would catch the water sled that went from a neighboring farm to within one mile of the school, get off and walk. He fell many times before he got there. Before he reached the school his brothers and sisters would catch up with him and they walked all three miles to the school. This 'drive' he had is what helped him in life, as he later raised a matched pair of Clydesdales and sold them as a lead team to Anheiser Busch in St. Louis, Mo. He used the money to finance his education at the School of Mining and Engineering at Rollo, Mo.

"He worked for the Katy Railroad in Central, Mo., after graduation from Rollo. He worked in Texas on private surveys. Then, he worked for Sand Springs Railroad, Sand Springs, Okla., which is the only railroad to support an orphanage in the U.S.A. He retired six months prior to his death after 35 years' service with them.

"His marriage with Nancy, his beloved wife, was short, from 1918 to 1927, just 9 short years. He still talked about her and missed her in 1945, the year he died.

"For an insight into my daddy's acceptance of his affliction is the fact that although polio left him with the walk of a drunk person, since he had to walk on the balls of his feet (he could not straighten his legs or arms to full length), he always smiled, saluted or spoke, full of life even to the very last.

"As a civil engineer, he would walk 30 miles carrying his tripod and at eve be ahead of most of the crew. This he was able to do because he walked with a rhythm. He was 6'6" tall and couldn't straighten up. He wore an 18 collar and had a 36" waist, 34" seam in trousers and a 34" sleeve -- Anyway, I knew him to be quite an unusual man - my daddy!"[516]

V. Hurst (J.P.) at Clark Co., Ill.[132], Clarinda C., daughter of and Eliza ( ) White, of , Ill., born at , Ill.; died , 1880 at Martinsville, Ill. Chester was a farmer; he is buried in Anadarko Cemetery, Section 16, Lot 20 Grave 1, West ½ lot, Anadarko, Okla.[530], where Eula Tingley Boone has recently had a marker placed on his grave. Jake and Levi N. Tingley paid for his funeral expenses, including clothing and flowers. "Chester was sorta trampish - played the violin, French harp and Jews harp - played at dances here" says Irma Tingley.

In the 1870 census, Clarinda, his wife, was with the family. In the 1880 census, Clarinda was gone and a new baby, John, was shown - probably named for his brother who was living with his grandmother Eliza Anderson. Thus Eliza must have remarried after Mr. White died[70].

08-00628-03 ROSE ADA TINGLEY-HURST[9] (Levi[8], Jacob[7], John[6], Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Hunt, Ill., born Jan. 24, 1866 at Martinsville, Ill.; died Oct. 15, 1944 in Schmidt Hospital, Robinson, Ill., heart ailment, having been a patient there a year lacking two weeks, first with gangrenous foot caused by diabetes, also other illnesses of four years' duration in all; married Sep. 1, 1899 by Harmon Newberger (J.P.) at Vigo Co., Ind.[278], Lawrence R., son of Robert and Sarah Ann (James) Hurst, of Martinsville, Ill., born Feb. 9, 1872 at Auburn (Clark Center), Ill.; died Jan. 28, 1940 in Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, Mo., cirrhosis and heart condition. At first, he was interred at Martinsville, Ill. in a mausoleum he had purchased 16 years before; after his wife's death in 1944 both were interred in the family plot in Riverside Cemetery, Newton, Ill. where a tombstone was also erected.

"Rose Ada Tingley was educated in Martinsville schools, having graduated from High School at the age of 16 but did not get to take part in graduation exercises as she was teaching her first term of school.

"She said that she pleased her mother so very much when she came home waving her certificate for her mother to see.

"Their home was two and one-half miles east of Martinsville and she struggled against many difficulties to obtain her education. There were five brothers and two sisters at home. The father went west and much of the farm work was done by a brother who did the plowing at the age of ten.

"She was a teacher at Martinsville when her sister, Myrtle Tingley Shawver, was starting to school. She took Myrtle and an older child, Jacob Chauncey, to live with her at Martinsville. She said that she could not do for both so let the boy stay at home. She educated Myrtle and she became a teacher until her marriage to Zara Shawver. Both of my parents were teachers; my father attended Central Normal College at Danville, Ind., was a pen artist, became a teacher in Clark Co., Ill., taught four years at the Yoke school east of Casey, Ill. where they lived. Rose Tingley attended Westfield College and during her career of almost 18 years of teaching was known as a teacher of high ability and rating. She was an eighth grade teacher at Casey, Ill. before her retirement and my birth.

"She never ceased to have an interest in teaching although busily engaged in their large general store at Hunt. She found time to serve in the two churches at Hunt as a teacher and Bible superintendent. She became a converted member of Mt. Pleasant Christian Church in young womanhood and transferred membership to Cong. Christian Church at Hunt in 1940. Brother Carl Hall of that church had her funeral. He is still minister there, a great minister and friend of ours.

"Burl Ive's sister Norma paid her a great compliment when she said that she would find an excuse to go to our store just to hear and talk with Mrs. Hurst, whom she said was so interesting. She ministered to the sick and sat up with the dead as I can remember. She was in the Schmidt Hospital nearly a year and many there wrote me how much they had been helped by her words of encouragement and at last she remarked 'So much to be done'. Truly, hers was a wonderful and beautiful life of service to her family and friends and those in need.

"Actually they lived four years at Casey, Ill., where both taught school, then moved to a farm at Martinsville for a short while, then to Walnut Prairie in 1904, where he operated an elevator 6 years, then bought a store at Hunt, Ill., also owned and operated a farm there in 1910. They were co-owners of a large general store and a hardware store.

"He was known as L. R. Hurst. He put an "R" in his name as he had a cousin at Auburn, Ill., who also was named Lawrence Hurst and their mail often got mixed. L. R. Hurst was a supervisor for Hunt City Twp. at the time of his death in 1940."[201]

08-00628-06 LEWIS WILLIAM TINGLEY[9] (Levi[8], Jacob[7], John[6], Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Hennessey, Anadarko, and Ponca City, Okla., then upon retirement, 1922, removed to Hollywood, Calif., born Oct. 11, 1874 at Martinsville, Ill.; died Jan. 31, 1923 at Norwalk, Orange Co., Calif., post surgery complications; buried with full Masonic Rites and Honors since he was a member of Masonic Lodge #21 of Anadarko, Okla.; married May 31, 1902 at Oklahoma City, Okla., Stella Pearl, daughter of William J. and Emma Josephine (Marshall) Fowler of Hennessey, Okla., born July 24, 1884 at Kellogg, Kansas; died Sep. 9, 1941 in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, Hollywood, Calif., insulin shock and stroke; both are buried in Hollywood Memorial Park, Section 19, Lot 170 (File 400), Hollywood, Calif. According to Lewis, Stella, his bride, was unexcelled in her beautiful sloping shoulders, her fine complexion, and her tiny waist, which he could encompass with his two hands.

"Lewis William Tingley spent 15 years of his life, prior to 1904, as a teacher in the rural schools of Illinois, Kansas, and Oklahoma. Besides his qualifications as instructor of reading, writing, and arithmetic, he qualified for one of his first positions by his fine Spencerian Penmanship, and, as a condition set by the School Board, by a demonstration of physical co-ordination in whipping the two overgrown bullies, who had dominated the classroom and intimidated its teachers for two years. Lewis always claimed it was his hands (or fists), not his brains, that made him a teacher. He was actually required to fight these two bullies in a demonstration fist fight in the presence of the board members though he did not believe in or practise corporal punishment.

"In another district he set his pupils the mathematical assignment of measuring and figuring the materials and costs, which would be required for the repairing and painting of the delapidated schoolhouse; and persuaded the Board to invest the money, and to approve the project as part of the educational curriculum, the students and teacher furnishing the labor, while the students learned by doing.

"In an oft-told family story, one School Board doubled his $15.00 a month salary in order to retain his services, by each of three board members contributing $5.00 per month from his own pocket.

"In 1970, Ethel Tingley Bauman, a distant cousin, as a young child under 10, remembers Lewis in young manhood, as 'the bestloved young man, I believe I have ever met in all my 80 years'. She recalls that upon occasional family parties, he was always to be found organizing games for the children, and pitching balls to them, until they dropped one by one from exhaustion.

"In 1930, Bertha Hollister, then a teacher in Inglewood City Schools, and also a distant cousin of Lewis, attending seminars in education at the University of California at Los Angeles, after a demonstration of Progressive Education testified that those methods were not new to her; that she had begun her schooling under one Lewis William Tingley of Illinois, who well before the late 1890's had distinguished himself by these practises. In order not to delay her education because of the deep snows, he had, furthermore, carried her on his back several miles through the drifts, being 'star-boarder' in her parents' home. His daughter, Inez, was the student-teacher in that seminar demonstration.

"After abandoning his career of public teaching for economic reasons and the growing responsibilities of family, Lewis continued his interests in education by teaching his daughter, Inez, to read at the early age of 2½ years, and held frequent command performances in his Anadarko home for educators, who furnished the reading material themselves, usually newspapers, in order to insure that the material had previously been unseen by the child.

"In addition to pioneer advocacy of Visual Education, Preschool Education, and the theory that one learns best by doing, he practised enrichment of the school program. He took his children traveling during summer vacations, traversing the various routes west, once over Parkman's Oregon Trail, after prerequisite reading of this classic; also into Abe Lincoln's country, and Tingley country in Clark County, Illinois, showing the old swimming hole, where he and his brothers had learned to swim, and the stumps of trees he had felled as a boy and marked with his 'LWT'. Thus a sense of history and its continuity was both personalized and expanded.

"I could write a book about my father -- whenever I have said that my father must have been 'a great teacher' I have been corrected by 'He was a great human being' and this from strangers, scattered from Oklahoma and Illinois to California and who, usually, had gone to school to him.

"He collected Indian Artifacts and had the largest privately-owned collection of Indian Artifacts in the world. In fact, it gradually crowded out of his time all other business affairs, so that he dealt in his last years only with museum curators and famous collectors like Herbert Hoover, Irvin S. Cobb, Victor J. Evans, and dozens of others.

"The best tribute to his influence among the Indians, whose culture he admired and respected, was a seven drum memorial salute by the Anadarko Indian elders in 1949, when Inez visited their camp, and it became known to them that Lewis' daughter was present. Each drum beat in a different time value but was synchronized with the others, and over the otherwise stoic faces of the drummers who, as young men, had known him, tears coursed unrestrained. I was deeply touched by their emotion.

"In retrospect, I note that my father's short life, barely exceeding forty-eight years, falls roughly into three 16-year periods: 16 years of youth; 15 years of teaching, which he began as he turned 16; and 17+ years as a business man; the last two periods overlapped by nearly 21 years as husband and father.

"The half century since his death, a period longer than his lifetime, has been a continuous testimonial to the fact that a man's influence, like a tree, casting its shade far beyond itself, can go where he can never be."[512]

08-00628-08 JACOB CHAUNCEY TINGLEY[9] (Levi[8], Jacob[7], John[6], Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Anadarko, Okla., born Aug. 15, 1880 at Martinsville, Ill.[132] (this birth is recorded in Clark Co. Courthouse, Marshall, Ill. as "born Aug. 15, 1880, male child, 10th to Levi and Malissa A. (Sweet) Tingley at Martinsville, Ill."). The general understanding seems to be that he was born the 14th; died July 31, 1965 in Friendship Manor Nursing Home, Anadarko, Okla.; married Oct. 30, 1901 by Homer Arends (J.P.) at Anadarko, Okla. (3rd couple married in Caddo Co., Okla. and first in Anadarko, Okla.), Leona (Onie) Mayree, daughter of Elie and Mary Irene (Moore) Robinson, of Hennessey, Okla., born Dec. 1, 1885 at Eddyville, Iowa; died June 9, 1970 at Tulsa, Okla. while sitting on the patio of her home talking to a neighbor; divorced about 1916. Leona married second Edward Caesar. Leona and Jacob are buried in Memory Lane Cemetery, Anadarko, Okla. Jacob was a retail merchant[201].

The following tribute by Inez Tingley Thoroughgood, a niece and one-time business partner, tells how she remembers her Uncle JACOB CHAUNCEY TINGLEY:

"The sons and daughters of Levi Thomas and Malissa Ann (Sweet) Tingley were an intensely loyal and close family of four girls and five boys. Two of the younger sons, Lewis and Jacob, migrated from Illinois to Oklahoma prior to 1900, and 1904 found them at Anadarko in business for themselves, where they were later joined by two other brothers, Levi Nathaniel and Charles David.

"Although they fraternized as a quartet, they paired off --Levi with Charles, and Lewis with Jacob, probably because the first pair remained bachelors for awhile and the other pair were soon married, both to Hennesey girls.

"The relationship between Lewis and Jacob was further reinforced when in their bachelorhood Jacob contracted smallpox at Hennessey; there being no hospitals in those territorial days, he was removed by law to the isolation of the pesthouse on the outskirts of the town. With total self-disregard Lewis immediately joined his younger brother there in quarantine, and became his nurse, otherwise Jacob would surely have died.

"In letters to me dated January 23, and February 21, 1971, Anna LaRue Dean-Fowler, with whose family my father had been boarding at the time, writes: '.....Your Uncle Jake was living in Hennessey at the time he had smallpox. He was a very sick man and no one thought he would live. Mother said his feet were raw on the bottom where the skin was thick and the pox couldn't come through, and caused such terrible itching that he took his pocketknife and scraped them raw'. 'I remember mother telling us how near your Uncle Jake came to dying with smallpox and mother was afraid your father might carry the smallpox home.'

"Lewis apparently had allowed himself to be vaccinated against smallpox, and nearly lost an arm from it. His arm stiffened so that he could never extend it full length, and because of this he steadily refused his consent for his children to be vaccinated during his lifetime. In 1918, he registered for the draft in World War I, but was rejected because of his arm, which was my first knowledge of his handicap.

"Jake was married on Oct. 30, 1901 and Lewis seven months later on May 31, 1902. Their first four children were born in 'teams' and their homes were only a few blocks apart. The eight cousins shared the same negro nursemaid, Polly, and scarcely knew which of themselves were siblings and which were cousins, and both parent couples shared a dual parenthood.

"All the Tingley men I knew were daft about children, their own, and all children, but of these four brothers, Uncle Jake was easily the most extravagant, with Lewis a close second. My small father would close his store in the daytime to personally check upon us, if we were ill, and and major illness was equivalent to Christmas. When my mother would chide him gently that he was spoiling us, he considered that his case was won with the statement, 'They're sick!' As for the gifts, with no background in psychology he justified them as 'Medicine, Mama, medicine!' He would sit up all night with us, keeping us covered, giving us drinks of cool water, telling us stories, giving us medicine and nickels by the spoonfuls, and making lavish promises of what we would do as soon as we were well again, promises which were always kept.

"One of my earliest memories of my Uncle Jake is that he came up behind me while I was looking longingly at a pair of ball-bearing roller-skates in a store window. They were as far out of my reach as a Rolls-Royce. He disappeared and shortly returned, lowering an identical pair by their leather straps between my eyes and the outside of the glass window. I can, at this moment, at least 60 years later, still hear his soft chuckles at my dumb astonishment.

"I remember another time, just before Christmas, that he took all of us into a toy store, asked the clerks to bring two large packing boxes, and then told us children to 'fill 'em up', which we obeyed with alacrity, while the clerks stared in disbelief, and he laughed until he cried.

"In 1949, I had estate business in Anadarko and stayed with my uncle for a month. When my three cousins, Irma, Norma, and Ena, joined us at Anadarko, Uncle Jake took us all to the best beauty salon in town, introduced us as his 'Hair-dolls' and instructed the attendants there to give us 'the works' during our stay, and to send the bills to him. He, himself, was always turned out well and fashionably.

"He and my father owned the first cars in town, about 1910 - the only two, and we children could distinguish which was approaching by the sound of its motor. These were open-topped affairs, with struts from top of fenders to steady the top, and carried carbide lamp-tanks on the running-boards, done up in elegantly shined brass, and hand brakes on the outside. They were cranked by hand, which kept women from driving.

"In 1949, while my business was in progress, I spent most of the day with my uncle in his store, and I observed the many ways in which he served the community there. I asked him about an interesting spear which was mounted upon the wall. He told me that it was his custom each year to donate a bullock to the Indians at the Indian Fair, which they roasted in the open for the feasting, and that the spear was the weapon which was used in the ceremonial slaughtering of the beast. It is the custom of the Indians to offer prayers for the beast-spirit, whose life they take for sustenance only, to insure that its spirit will roam green pastures forever. The spear is a trophy, honoring the donor.

"I observed that my uncle held unofficial court, and acted as counsellor for the Indians. He would hear the complaint of a wife, whose husband had beaten her, look at her bruises, sympathize with her tears, and send a message by her to the man, who apparently was in the habit of requiring frequent loans. The man would come shuffling in, and my uncle would tell him that if word came to his ears again of a repetition, that all business transactions between them would cease, and he would personally see him to jail. Seemed to work.

"The town inebriates, white and Indian, daily called upon my uncle for his indulgence. When I asked him why he gave them small sums, which were obviously for further inebriation, he said that they had to have it, that they were too far gone for recovery, and that he gave them just enough to go on, not enough to get drunk on, and so that they wouldn't be driven to stealing, and end in jail.

"He habitually asked me each mid-morning to 'keep store' for him, while he 'went up the street'. Finally, I asked him where he went so regularly, and abashed, he said '.... to the jail.'

"But why!

"'I have to see if any of my friends are in trouble.' If they were he baled them out. His 'friends' were the friendless.

"Whenever, my uncle and I left the store we were inevitably surrounded by small fry, who seemed to come out of nowhere, calling 'Jake, Jake' and laughing like fiends. These he introduced as 'My friends', and with three or four, clinging to each hand, and the rest to his coat-tails, we would proceed by tow to the nearest confectionery, where each was treated to his favorite confection. With one boy it was always, 'bananas, Jake, bananas,'. Jake was a pied-piper with children. They followed him everywhere.

"Jake had a charm, with his slow Oklahoma drawl, and a folk wit, rather like Will Rogers, but just as uniquely his own. I used to say to him, 'If I could get you on a record, I could make a fortune!' It is impossible to put him on paper.

"My business in Anadarko in 1949 had to do with a building, belonging to my mother's estate, of which I was executrix. My father, as a young man in 1904, had purchased a two-story building, in which he had his business. In 1916, he left Anadarko, and for the remaining seven years of his life, Jake had looked after the building, its rentals and collections, and the repairs, as if it had been his own.

"For another eighteen years of absentee ownership he did the same services for my mother; then when I took over at her death he performed the same services under my executorship for another eight years. As he was in his 69th year, I felt he should be relieved of the major renovation of a building nearly 50 years old. In the interests of the other heirs, I was there to renovate the building, and if possible to sell it.

"This building shared a staircase with the building next door, which was owned by the banker, who had another building on the corner lot. I called upon this man, who here shall be nameless, to ask him to share in the expense of renovating the staircase, which had to be completely rebuilt, risers, treads, and landing, and the walls replastered, and new baseboards put in. He flatly refused to contribute a penny, for he knew I would not be able to renovate half of a stairway. I told him, although I lived out of state, and did not have to suffer the direct shame of owning an eyesore, that I would not have my name on a property in that shape. I would stand the entire expense myself.

"I felt that my business acumen suffered some strain in the eyes of my uncle, but he, in no way, reproached me. He did, however, refuse to deposit with this banker, and with no other bank in town, he kept large sums of money in his own safe. When I spoke to him of the possible risk, he decried it, saying that no one would dare to rob him because every one in the state knew how well he could shoot. He didn't even bother to pull the shades, even when passers-by were looking into his store while he opened his safe, and made the necessary withdrawals and replacements.

"I was unsuccessful in my attempts to sell the building after renovation, and knowing that I did not wish to sell my share, my uncle generously bought out the other heirs, paying them their asking price, and he and I became partners for another six years. As a partner he was as silent, as he was as a skate-producer. He always insisted that I was the executive officer, and all decisions were mine to make, while he did the management and maintenance. We carried on during those years a spirited correspondence and an enjoyable partnership.

"Came the day when I was able to redeem my business ability in the eyes of my uncle, and to receive from him the acolade, paid to my Grandmother Malissa Tingley by her neighbor and friend, Robert Hurst, whose son, Lawrence, was later to marry Malissa's daughter, Rose Ada Tingley. He said that everybody respected Lissa, and that she could trade as well as any man.

"The aforementioned banker wrote me a letter in 1955, saying that he was going to tear down his building and that the joint staircase would come down with it. By return mail, I advised him clearly what I was going to do, if he did, or even touched a single brick without my written consent. In the same mail, I sent a letter to Uncle Jake asking him to brief me upon the situation, intimating that I thought the banker was just trying to intimidate me, as an approach to an offer to buy.

"Uncle Jake responded with a building plan for the Drive-in Bank, already underway. An examination of this plan revealed to me that the building projected would require both properties of the banker and my own as well, and I knew I had him. My uncle also reminded me that the banker was a tough man to do business with, but I responded that I felt perfectly able to handle him this time and Uncle Jake referred all overtures to me for my decision.

"I doubled the price Uncle Jake and I would have accepted from a gentleman, and I held on like a bulldog. I never retreated an inch or a dollar from my original figure. I pointed out that he had no alternative (as previously I had had none) for I could tie him up in court for a money and time cost to exceed the price I asked, and therefore, he could not afford NOT to buy, and that he could not build without my property. Uncle Jake's reports came through thick with rue between the lines, but he never deviated from his stand that it was my deal. The banker bought. Sic semper tyrannis.

"Afterwards Uncle Jake wrote me that he thought for sure I was going to lose that sale, and that when he signed the papers and put them in the mail for my signature that he closed the store and went home to bed for two whole days to recoup. He never tired of recalling in subsequent letters how his partner beat that rascal at his own game. He also grieved to see the building go down because it had belonged to Lew. The building was then 51 years old and Uncle Jake had managed it for nearly 40 years.

"During the decade of his life following our partnership, we continued to correspond. His letters from 1938-1948 had been filled with his concern and tender care of his brother, Levi who died in 1948, and the years 1949-1959 were likewise filled with his concern for his remaining brother, Charles, who was totally paralyzed for ten years. He had also provided a last home and burial for his much older first cousin, William Chester Tingley, first-born of John H. Tingley.

"It was Uncle Jake, too, who sent in the same year, 1926, both his parents home to Martinsville, Illinois, where they had wanted to lie, and purchased a viewplot under fine trees for them, and reared an imposing monument to mark their final resting place.

"When letters grew less frequent, and finally ceased altogether, and I could get no word about my Uncle Jake, I sent a personal representative to Anadarko and learned that my Uncle Jake had died July 31, 1965.

"Both my Uncle Jake, and his wife, the beautiful, auburn-haired Leona, my Aunt Onie, in 1949, had said that they could not have loved the children of Lewis and Stella more, if they had been their own. That I returned this love in full is self-evident in these lines, and I am profoundly honored to here memorialize them."

The following is the history of Jake's Indian Store, as told in the Anadarko Daily News of July 6, 1964, by Henry Geiogamah, who is on the Kiowa Roll:

"The Oklahoma Indian Store, located at 128 W. Main in downtown Anadarko since 1900, is filled with hundreds of Indian artifacts which are stories in themselves, and if it weren't a business establishment, its owner, 84 year-old Jacob C. Tingley, could easily convert it into a museum. (His son Vinson plans to go to school in June 1973 to learn how to set up a museum which will be known as the TINGLEY

"When I was a youngster, I often visited the store to look at the many strange and pretty things in its showcases. Even as a child I was welcome there. Jake, as he is known to the kids, would often reach into his pocket and pull out a handful of pennies and say, 'Here, you go get yourself an ice cream cone.'

"I knew then about Jake and that he was nice to me and that he owned the store which is visited by hundreds of persons every week.

"His daughter operates the store but he still maintains an active interest in its affairs. His daughter, Irma, became manager when Jake was made bedfast by a stroke some 12 years ago.

"It was the last day of the Indian Fair when the stroke hit him, Irma said, 'and he was unable to get out of bed for more than two years afterwards'.

"It wasn't until recently that I found out how Jake happened to come to Anadarko, as related by Irma.

"Born in Martinsville, Ill., in 1880 Jake followed his father and mother to the Indian Territory, arrived in 1894 or 1895. The trip was made by covered wagon." (At age 14 years Jake must have come with his parents instead of following them. The article isn't very clear - surely a boy of 14 years would not make a trip alone by covered wagon). At any rate, the article says: "In 1900 he returned to Anadarko and was hired to deliver groceries for a local merchant. In 1901 he borrowed $100 from a friend and set up shop in a frame wooden building on the same site where the store is located today. There were two rooms in the back of the store, and Jake lived there until he married in October of that year.

"Records show that Tingley married Leona Robinson on Oct. 30, 1901, and they were the third couple to be married in Caddo County and the first in Anadarko.

"The ceremony was performed by Homer Arands, Justice of the Peace, and the license was issued by Judge Charles L. Crumm. Junius Oldham and V. Williams were witnesses.

"The Oklahoma Indian Store operated from the beginning for trade with the Indians, Jake bought, sold and traded everything from a horse harness to a buckskin Indian costume.

"'Jake was always friendly with the Indians, and he learned their sign language by talking to them around an old pot-belly stove in the rear of the store.' Irma said.

"'Another interesting thing about the store back in those days is what was called the 'talk - fight bench.' Indians would sit on the bench in front of the store and work out their problems with one another by arguing,' Irma said.

"The store building has been remodeled since then, but the merchandise hasn't been changed. Indians continued to frequent the store during both World Wars, and things have changed very little since the first day of operation. During those many years, Jake became the father of three daughters and two sons.

"'We have employed many Indians', Irma said, 'and one of our employees, Mrs. Amie Carter, has worked on and off for us for 35 years.' Mrs. Carter, an Acaddo Indian, still works there today.

"Many of the costumes found in the store are not for sale, and museums have offered the Tingleys large sums of money for them.

"'We wouldn't sell them for anything,' Irma said.

"Friends of the Tingleys who visit the store are quite familiar with a large doll on display in one of the store's showcases. Called 'Littlejoe' by the Indians, she has observed the activities taking place in the Oklahoma Indian Store for many years. The doll was made by Rhoda Redhorn.

"The store is filled with colorful costumes, jewelry, beadwork, turquoise articles and drums. It is the place where Indians go to buy a beautiful handmade ring or to get a loan.

"'Jake still comes down to the store on the first day of each Indian Fair to see all of his friends and to watch the parade.' Irma said."

Remembrances sent by Ethel Tingley Bauman after she had received her copy of Volume I The Tingley Family Revised: "Just being able to remember some of them, like Uncle Levi and Uncle Lewis, Reuben and many others makes the reading more meaningful. I faintly remember some of their children but not all of them for I came to California when I was young - Flora, Goldie and Lulu, I well remember.

"Lulu was near my age, a very pretty blonde girl full of life and vitality - at sixteen she was popular and fun-loving. While very young she married a Mr. Crouch against the will of her parents. He was just plain 'no good'. A few years later, he was accused of burning his house to collect the insurance, was convicted, and sent to prison. Lulu fearing that she would be implicated with her husband ran away -- no one knew where. Her family, Goldie, her sister, especially spent her whole life trying to find little Lulu.

"There were rumors that she had come to California so when I came here in 1922, Goldie asked me to see if I couldn't find her -- well, California is a big, big State with lots of people and I had no luck. Finally, when Lulu was 65, she wrote to the clerk in Casey, Ill., where Goldie lived, to get her birth certificate or other information. The clerk of course knew Goldie and all the circumstances, so gave Goldie Lulu's address. So, the two sisters wrote to each other again.

"In the meantime, Lulu had married again to Bill Smith. Whatever happened to Crouch, I do not know -- suppose he died in prison. It turned out that Lulu was living in Morro Bay, Calif., half way between Los Angeles and San Francisco -- a route that my husband and I often traveled. So I went to see Lulu. I would have known her even though Father Time had not treated her too well. She did not know me, so Father Time hadn't been too good to me either -- she knew that I was a relative and I looked familiar, but could not definitely identify me.

"She had worked as a waitress, a housekeeper, and later a cook on road construction projects where her husband was a contractor of some kind. Strange to say, she had been living in Santa Barbara many years, where my brother Bill lived and where John and I often visited before Bill moved there. We were just 'ships that pass in the night'.

"Lulu was still vivacious and jolly -- tried to give us everything she had to take home -- fresh grapes, melons, and jelly. Even then, she was troubled by an injury to her leg. Goldie sent her money to come home, but she never made it -- died a couple of years later. John and I went again to see them and we knew she was rapidly failing. I wrote to Goldie hoping she would come out, but she too, was ill -- so the sisters never met again. Lulu's husband died suddenly a short time after we were there the first time."

A letter written by Elmer from Manila, P. I. Feb. 6, 1945 while in Santo Tomas Internment Camp:

"Dear Sister, Brother and daughters:

"I am still among the living. We were interned May 17, 1943, and since that time have been confined most of the time indoors and fed very little, and the last six months we have received about one hand full of rice or cracked corn (hog feed in Nebr.) twice a day. Hundreds of the weakest have passed on from pure starvation, and when the doctors certified to that, they were put in jail. Only the hardiest of us have been able to pull through. There was tons of food sent us from friends in Manila, but the Japs either ate it or sent it back, and the last six months we did not receive news from outside the prison walls. I haven't seen or heard from my wife and babies now for over seven months, and don't know if they are living or dead. We have four boys now. The last one was born Aug. 1, '43. Is now over a year and a half old, and I have seen him twice only. His name is Orestus. We expect to get out in a few days now, as an American Army headed by (this was blacked out) landed in Lingoyen and made a forced march to Manila in three days arriving here Febr. 3, at 8:30 P.M., stormed the camp and killed the Jap garrison and took the camp over and hoisted Old Glory to the top of the pole, and since then our ration has been gradually increased and we are coming to life again, but six died on that Memorial Day. The Japs have refused to surrender, and the American Army is exterminating them and destroying the city to get at them, so we expect to get out in a few days to see our families. Enough about ourselves.

"How are you all, including Lulu and Arva? I hope you are all well. I suppose your grandsons and mine are all in the army. I hope nothing serious has happened to them.

"I wish you would write to Sears & Roebuck, Chicago, Ill., at once and have them mail me their general catalog. Also to some garden and farm seed co., and have them do the same. Instruct them to mail to gen. del. Manila, P.I. at once.

"I will probably write again in a few days, and now wishing you all the best in the world, will close, with love and best wishes.

Elmer"

The following is a poem he wrote and sent to his sister Emma:

My Old Nebraska Home

We came to that land
Of prairie so grand
In the fall of eighty-three,
In our covered wagon
With the canvas flaggin
In the breeze that is dear to me.

'Twas the fertile state Nebraska
Then as barren as Alaska
Lincoln was the County, land was free,
On the Garfield-table land
We made our final stand
And a home that was always loved by me.

We lived that winter and fall
In a dugout very small
Father dug it in a hillside with a spade,
We were happy and content
And the time was joyfully spent
In the home where we all so gladly stayed.

Father pre-empted Government lands
Former homes of Indian bands
And we broke the prairie and planted corn with glee,
We had such wonderful health
With bulging muscles for our wealth
And Nebraska sunshine that was always dear to me.

Our crops were usually light
And money was always tight
For fuel, the Buffalo chip just had to be,
We gathered them in the fall
By the family, one and all
In the home that I would dearly love to see.

When Autumn rolled around
The sand cherries covered the ground
On the Dismal, wild plums were good to see,
Wild grapes and choke-cherries
And delicious Buffalo berries
Grew plentiful in the land I long to see.

With hardships we were pressed
But with good neighbors we were blessed
I'll name a few of them just to see,
If my memory serves me right
On this hot and sultry night
Longing to glimpse the home so far from me.

There was jolly Cyrus Fox
And tall slim Daddy Cox
And a man without reproach was Campbell Fee,
There was Daddy Auble and Harvey Hughes
No better could you choose
In that land of my youth, I long to see.

There was John Griffith and Luis Shell
I knew them both so well
Speagles, Dibbles, Frolkeys were farmers free,
Manrovishes and Babcocks
I could call them by the flocks
They made homes in the land I long to see.

There was Tommy Johnstons and the Millers
Of this lovely land were tillers
Dad Smith, John Clark, Robert Harden, these three,
Whether these men are dead or living
To them my respects I'm giving
Their home was in the land I long to see.

When my memory fly's away
To the land where I used to play
With my boy friends so happy and so free,
I oftimes stop and ponder
Just how I came to wander
From the home that is dearly loved by me.

But I left those pleasant scenes
For the sunny Philippines
To help make these tropic Islands free,
When the fighting once grew slack
I expected to go back
To the home that was always dear to me.

But the tropics are very queer
They just hold a fellow here
Until it seems there is no other place to be,
So I have basked in tropic content
Until my years are mostly spent
And only in my dreams the old home see.

Of this story of my youth
I'm telling you the truth
Hot tears are defying me to see,
For my parents both have died
And are resting side by side
In that land that I will probably never see,

Elmer.

"Floyd and Emma lived in a sod house in Garfield and farmed the land during the first years of their marriage. Around the turn of the century they moved to North Platte, where Floyd was employed by the Pacific Fruit Express Company, Union Pacific, for twenty-four years, until his retirement in 1931. Emma was well known for her fine needlework, especially her beautiful and intricate crocheting and quilts. Much of her work has been kept and is treasured by her daughters and grandchildren."[285]

Copy of letter Emma wrote to her brother, Elmer, in reply to his letter included under 09-01390; her letter was dated March 1, 1945 from North Platte, Nebr., as follows:

"Dear Brother, You can't imagine how glad we all were to get a letter from you again and believe me it has been read many times already and I only got it yesterday, Feb. 28. As soon as I could quit crying for joy I took the letter and went to Maude and she read it and then called Lula and Arva and told them and they came and read it. I had just thought ever since Pearl Harbor that you and all your family were killed, but about six weeks ago the Red Cross sent me your address. We had the Red Cross here trying to find you, and Bud had the Red Cross in Denver, Colo., trying to find you and it took this long to do it. They told me you were in Santo Tomas Camp and we have been watching the papers and listening to the news on the radio. We were sure glad when we heard they had taken that camp. We wrote two letters to the address they sent me but they said we couldn't write only 24 words but we thought that would be better than none if you ever got it. I do hope you find your family all right and all well. Do let us know as quick as you find out about them. Ote is out and we haven't been able to find him yet but we tell everyone that knows him to watch for him and I sent a card to his mail box. Maud called Harold and told them. He is married and lives here in town. He has the cutest little boy I ever saw. He is working for the railroad and they have him deferred all the time. They say they need men on the railroad just as bad as they do in the Army, and Linn, that is Maud's youngest boy, isn't quite old enough to go yet. He will graduate from High School this year and then he is going to join the Marines. He just can't hardly wait. Bud and his wife live in Fort Collins, Colo., Babe and Ray live in Hemet, Calif. Ray is driving a bus. Their boy Gail has been in the Army about a year. He is at Fort Riley, Kansas. He has been studying radio, he just graduated in Feb. He doesn't know where he will go from there. Jean's husband is in the Navy and so is Betty's husband, but they are both in camp yet. Gail is married and has 3 children. They live in Bakersfield, Calif. Two of Lula's boys are in the Army. Raymond got shot in the leg when he was overseas and was in a cast 4 or 5 months. They got him back to Calif. as soon as they could but they didn't discharge him, and Jimmy, her youngest boy is in some of the islands but I don't know which. I guess Lula will tell you. Floyd Hammond, Grace's husband just landed in Manila lately. Grace is Lula's oldest girl. Brother Lue is in Oregon yet. He is at Lakeside. Addie and Eck and Will and Mary are still kicking around, but they are like myself, they are not very swift anymore. I got a card from Stella Smith yesterday. She is pretty well. Lyle Smith's boy, his name is Lyle Edward Smith, is a prisoner of war in Manila, has been there since Pearl Harbor. You might know him. I will order your catalogs right away. I hope you get all you want to eat and gain your strength again and I hope you find your family all well. Write often and tell me all the news. Love to all, Emma."

06 William Stansberry,	b. Apr. 30, 1885;	10-02726.

"Charles Andrew Kinkade was named for his two grandfathers, Charles Spillman and Andrew Kinkade.

"Charles Andrew Kinkade has been a wanderer on the face of the earth. At the age of 3 he started, when his parents removed from Shelby Co., Ind. to Stark Co., Ill. At 16 or 17 he followed the family to Iowa, for a winter's work on the Mississippi River Canal near Keokuk. Thence to Clark Co., Mo. In 1872 he went back to Illinois, in 1874 to Keokuk, Iowa, and in 1877 to Missouri once more. In 1890 he removed his family of a wife and five children to Illinois and a few years later to Keokuk, Iowa, once more. He was working in Texas in 1900, and was at Galveston during the great tidal wave that wrecked the town. In 1901 he settled in Ford Co., Kansas, where he resided until 1915. Thence to Idaho, on to Washington, in 1916; and back to Illinois for the last trip in 1928, his address -- Bentley, Ill.

"The Stark Co. Kinkades have been a clan of stone cutters. Alva Stickle, who married Katherine Kinkade, daughter of Secrest Kinkade and Elisabeth Spillman, was a stone-cutter. Pearly Nicklas Dixon, who married Rachel Kinkade, was a stone cutter. Ebenezer Stansberry Kinkade, himself a cutter and hewer of stone when he wasn't farming or selling oxien remedies, was the father of four stone cutters: Charles Andrew, the doyen of the clan; Benjamin Franklin, another wandering stone-cutter; Edgar Lane (d. 1930); and Ebenezer Stansberry, Jr. who left stone-cutter's trade for the railway mail service."[136]

"Patrick came to the United States from Ireland, as a young man, enlisted in the U.S. Calvary for service in the Civil War. He enlisted under the name of Jack Love. It is supposed that he ran away from the army, as he never talked of his service, and never tried to get a pension from the government. What campaigns he participated in is unknown, but in one skirmish he received a bullet wound through the neck. He was a railroad and building contractor, and traveled through the West making money hand over fist, and spending it freely. He was in Texas in 1871, Arkansas, in 1873, Washington, 1885, Kansas, 1887, Idaho about 1890, and lived in California from 1894

08-00696-04 MAY TINGLEY-YOUNG[9] (Sidney[8], Joseph[7], Lemuel[6], Nathaniel[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Boulder and Bennett, Colo., born Aug. 7, 1874 at Craig, Mo.; died Apr. 9, 1962 at Denver, Colo.; married Dec. 25, 1890 near St. Joseph, Mo., Jacob Christopher, son of Christopher and Sophia ( ) Young, of Boulder, Colo., born June 24, 1865 at Rhinefalls, near Hamburg, Germany; died July 21, 1946 at his ranch in Bennett, near Denver, Colo. Both are buried in Green Mountain Cemetery, Boulder, Colo.[201]

"Jacob C. Young came to America at the age of 17 and for a few years was located in St. Louis, Mo., going from there to Western Kansas where he spent the next 10 years[216].

"Upon leaving Kansas he came to Colorado in a covered wagon with four children, at the turn of the century, and located near Boulder, Colo., on a dairy farm, also raised berries. There the three younger children were born[201].

"In 1910 they took up a homestead in eastern Colorado near Bennett where he has since made his home. Dott and Elva remained in Boulder[201].

"In 1890 Mr. Young and May Tingley were married and together lived happily for 55 years. To this union seven children were born, all of whom survived their father[216].

"In the year 1892 Mr. Young accepted the doctrines of the Bible as taught by Seventh Day Adventists, and remained faithful and loyal to this church until his death.

"When Jacob C. Young passed away the Kiowa Valley and Bennett communities lost one of their oldest residents. Mr. Young had been in failing health for some time, and had spent the past several months in California, returning home only recently."[216]

"The old family farm still remains and is farmed by the youngest son, Earl."[201]

Through the courtesy of Western Publications, Inc., we have permission to include an article supplied by Mrs. Verlyn Stearns which was published in Old West Magazine in the Summer of 1968. Prior to that, in 1950, it was privately printed in book form and tells of pioneer life as written by Ida C. Miles, who says "This is my mother's story of early days in Michigan, her trip to Nebraska in a covered wagon and the pioneer days in Nebraska. I have written it in simple language for that was the way Mother talked. She did not have a chance to get an education, but she longed for her children to have the opportunity which she was denied. Each person mentioned was a true character. Mother passed away in 1935" -- Ida Canaga Miles.

It is repeated here because one of the characters mentioned is John Sheldon Stearns and it deals with pioneer life as experienced by our early settlers, and is typical of all those early settlers and their pioneering experiences.

ECHOES OF THE PLAINS

(Pioneer life of Clarissa Ellen Crockford-Canaga, sister to Elizabeth (Georgie) Crockford, wife of John S. Stearns)

"I was born in Ohio in 1848; moved to Elmhall, Michigan, with my parents, Joseph and Mary Crockford, and four brothers, Henry, William, Benton and John, when I was five years old. The country was new and thinly settled. No one had much money, but very little was needed for there was not much we could buy. All the pioneers were interested in, was in getting a home. Everyone was glad to help another fellow, because he never knew when he himself would need assistance. A neighbor meant a helper and a sympathizer.

"The country was covered with a dense forest and many rocks. Father found it slow work, struggling and working early and late hours trying to clear the land. The only tools the men had to work with were a one-bladed ax, a crosscut saw and some wooden wedges they had made of hardwood. Only a small patch of ground could be cleared in a year. The first thing they did was to construct a log house. They built some sheds for the cattle and horses, for the winters were long and cold and the snow very deep. The stock lived on the native grass.

"Early in the spring the menfolks would tap the maple trees and place spouts in them made from alder trees. The alder stem was soft in the center. This could easily be cleaned out, making a hollow stem. They placed buckets and cans under the spouts to catch the sap. We gathered the sap twice a day and boiled it down and made maple syrup and maple sugar out of it. This we all enjoyed very much. In the winter time we would look forward to the coming of spring when we could get out and make the maple sugar.

"We did not get to go to school very much. We only had three or four months of school a year. Each parent had to furnish his children with books. If he was not able to buy the books the child had to stay at home. And quite often we were kept at home to work. The only studies that were taught were reading, writing and spelling. People were more interested in getting a home than they were in the education of their children.

"Later on a baby girl came to live with us. We named her Elizabeth. I was very fond of her. Now I had a sister to play with. In two years another boy was added to the family; we called him Jacob. Later on another boy; his name was Joseph. We called him Joe for short.

"There were no doctors in the country. When Mother was sick, Father was the doctor, nurse, cook and washwoman. When the rest of us were sick Mother took care of us. As luck would have it we had very little sickness in the family, and all grew to be strong and healthy.

"A young man came to the neighborhood by the name of Elias Canaga. He was from Ohio. In a few months we were married. I felt quite grownup now and was anxious to get a home of my own.

"Brothers Henry and Benton were married before I was. They were able to find some good land to homestead but all the choice land had been taken when Elias and I were married, so we had to look elsewhere.

"We worked hard trying to get enough land cleared to raise a crop to live on. After a year we became discouraged and wanted to go somewhere where we could plant a crop without having to work so hard to clear the ground first. We had been reading about the plains of Nebraska. The broad and rolling prairies. We thought it would be fine to live in a country where the ground was ready for the plow. We thought how grand it would be to hunt buffalo and elk and rabbits and all kinds of birds. To just roam the prairies at will, where we could see for miles in every direction. We would not have to build roads but could just go anywhere. Would not have any timber or rocks or hills to bother us.

"We had read of Nebraska being admitted as a state on March 1, 1867, and of the relocation of the capital at Lincoln on July 29, the same year. And the establishment of the State University at Lincoln on February 15, 1869. And the completion of the Union Pacific Railroad through Nebraska to the Pacific Coast on May the 11 of the same year. The Enactment of the Free Homestead Law January 1, 1863. This all interested us, and especially the Free Homestead Law.

"On March 17, 1870, our first child was born. A little girl. We named her May. Soon after that we decided to leave the little village of Elmhall, Michigan, and go west. If we didn't find anything that suited us we would go on to Nebraska, 'The Promised Land.'

"Father said, 'If you have decided to move I will have a sale and go with you. It is too dangerous for young folks to start out alone where there are so many Indians.'

"Father settled up his business, sold his furniture and stock, and was soon ready to go with us. We packed our trunks and filled our lunch baskets and the last night came for us to spend under the old home roof. It was a beautiful night. I shall never forget it. The moon shone bright. Outside in the old apple tree the crickets were singing their soft melodies. The tap-tapping sound of the branches on the roof and the doleful sound of the doves soon lulled us off to sleep.

"The next morning all was hurry-scurry. Friends and relatives came to bid us goodbye and wish us good luck and to hope that we would not be killed by the Indians. Among the neighbors who came was a young man about twenty years old; he was mentally deficient. No one paid any attention to him. I noticed him coming toward me and he was trembling and shaking all over. He said as he looked at me and took my hand, 'Dis tumin and doin', is what dets me.' I bade him goodbye and left.

"There were nine of us going: Father and Mother; three brothers, John, Jacob and Joe; sister Lib; my husband, Elias Canaga; and myself and daughter. Our daughter was now five weeks old. We had two covered wagons. The weather was fair and we were all feeling fine. Our hearts were jubilant and merry, our air castles were grand beyond expression. We were filled with hope. (Oh, the hopes of youth.) That is the thing that makes life worth living. If it were not for the whistle and merry song of youth, what a dreary world this would be. I say, keep on with your laughter and song. We must have it to brush away the clouds of sorrow and give us a brighter dawn.

"It was not long till my health failed me. The baby grew tired and weary riding in the covered wagon over the rocks and hills, for there were no roads, just trails. I grew sick but we could not stop; we must move on. Mr. Canaga tried to get a place in a house for me to sleep nights. The people were afraid to take us in. They had heard so much about the gypsies that they were afraid of every emigrant wagon they saw. They were afraid I had some contagious disease because I was sick. Right there I promised myself that if ever I had a home of my own, I would never turn anyone away who came to me hunting shelter. Although that was many years ago, I have kept my promise.

"They all enjoyed the campfire at night but me. I was too sick to get any enjoyment out of life. The baby fretted and cried all the time when the wagon was standing still. She wanted to keep moving. The doctors now call it colic. I was inexperienced and did not know why she cried so much; I did not know what to do for her.

"Every morning before we started out, I would bathe the baby. Like most young mothers, I thought it had to have a bath, regardless of the weather conditions.

"At noon we would stop for dinner. Mother spread a clean cloth on the ground and put the food on it. They all laughed and told stories and planned on what they would do when they arrived in Nebraska. One thing that we all agreed upon was, that we would feast on buffalo meat. The happiest hours of our lives are when we are living on air castles and bubbles. But, oh, when the bubbles burst!

"The nights were damp and cold. As we neared the plains the wind seemed to come with more force and vengeance. Sometimes it blew so hard that it almost took the canvas off the wagons. The country was thinly settled. Sometimes we would drive for miles before we could find a place to camp where there was water and grass for the horses. Most of the time the only fuel we could get was cow chips and buffalo chips. We used these also for smudges. If we camped along where there was water the mosquitoes were very bad. Someone would have to get up several times in the night to build up the smudges or we could not sleep.

"Our family slept in one wagon. Father's family could not all sleep in their wagon so the boys slept on the ground. They enjoyed sleeping that way when the weather was nice and calm, but when it was storming, it was not so pleasant. One evening when it was about time to camp we were near a long, steep hill. Mr. Canaga thought we should drive to the top of the hill to camp, that it would be better for the horses next day. So we drove to the top of the hill and camped for the night.

"The sky was clear and balmy, but in the night we were awakened by a bad storm. It thundered and lightened, rained and hailed and the wind blew a hurricane. I was so frightened that I did not know what to do. Mr. Canaga said, 'There is not any danger, there is not a thing we can do but stay in the wagon and make the best of it.' We did.

"Pretty soon we felt the wagon moving. This frightened me worse than ever. My husband tried to quiet me by saying that the ground was smooth and we could not tip over, for me to go to sleep and forget it. It stormed most of the night. When morning came we found ourselves at the foot of the hill, but we did not tip over. The ground was so wet and muddy that we had to wait several hours before we could drive to the top of the hill again.

"After three weeks we arrived at Rippley, Brown County, Illinois. We had relatives there and thought it best to rest awhile till the hot weather was over. I was so glad to get to rest.

"My three uncles lived there. The country was thinly settled and most people had to get along without a doctor's care if they were sick. After some rest the baby began to get better but my health did not improve much.

"While there, we lost both our horses. It took all the money that we made that summer to buy another team. We borrowed money of my uncle to start out on our long journey again. Just as we were ready to go, our baby took sick with cholera infantum. My uncle's baby lay a corpse in the house with the same disease. It was considered fatal. The only doctor in that part of the country lived ten miles away. Mr. Canaga started out afoot to get him. Long, anxious hours passed while we were waiting for him and the doctor to come. Every minute she grew worse. She seemed to be burning up with fever. We bathed her in tepid water and did everything we could for her and still she grew worse. Her little eyes rolled back in her head as she moaned. She did not recognize anything.

"'Oh, will the doctor never come?' I kept saying as I watched the road. 'God have mercy on our darling.' Her breathing was getting shorter and slower. Only a mother can realize what I went through. When I saw Mr. Canaga coming and he was alone, my heart seemed to quit beating.

"'Where is the doctor?' I said.

"'He was called out to see another child that had cholera infantum, so he told me to go over to see that old physician, and I did. That is the reason I was gone so long.'

"The old physician had said, 'Give her a tablespoon of castor oil with one drop of laudanum in it. If she throws it up give her another one and place a wet cloth in cold water at her throat. After the oil has gone through, give her a teaspoonful of Wakefield's Blackberry Balsam.'

"We did as he advised and saved our baby. We always kept a supply of this medicine on hand after that, and saved many babies with it.

"In September we bade my uncles and friends goodbye and started again for the trackless West. My uncle said he would come later. The roads were dry and dusty; sometimes the wind would blow the dirt so badly that we could not see the road in front of the horses. Some days we could not get any water to drink or for the horses. The farther we went, the fewer people we saw. It seemed like a wilderness. Some days we would not see a house, not a thing but cactus and buffalo grass.

"After four weeks of hard travel, we arrived at Lincoln, Nebraska. The town was small, only a few houses, and they were not painted; some were made of logs.

"Immigrants were camped all over the town. We had not been there long till it began to rain and it rained for two weeks. We tried to rent a house. There were none to rent. We finally found a stable, twelve feet square, that we could get for $10.00. We were not able to pay that much so had to camp out in the rain. We were camped on Antelope Slough, on the east side of town. I shall never forget our stay there.

"The cold rain beat through our wagon cover till everything in the wagon was soaking wet. The bedding was so wet that I could wring water out of the quilts. When I would slap my hand on the pillows the water would just fly from them. Sick at heart and discouraged, we could not give up. 'That home' in the future was the hope that inspired us.

"We had with us an old cook stove with an elevated oven on it. We set this on the ground beside the wagon. There was no other shelter. We cooked on this by gathering sticks or cobs or cow chips, anything we could find that would burn. I dried the baby's clothes in the oven.

"One day while I was sitting in the wagon crying - I was so sick that I could hardly hold my head up - my brother Joe came along with his big overcoat on, shivering in the wet and cold. When he saw that I was crying, he said, 'Never mind, Ellen, we will have something to tell our children when we get old.' An expression like that, coming from a young man, was enough to make any person laugh through the tears.

"It was soon noised around town that there was a sick lady and babe in a covered wagon in the east side of town. Three men came to see us the next day. They were very kind and wanted to help us. They said there was an old house about three miles north of town and that we could move in. The man that did own it was in debt so deeply that he ran away and left it.

"The next day the men came back and helped us move. We thanked them very kindly for helping us at a time like that; we only wished we could pay them for their kindness. The house was built of boards stood endwise. Foot boards on the roof. We were mighty glad to get to move. The next thing to think about was where to get something to burn.

"We had reached the plains at last - the place we had yearned and longed for. Oh, how desolate it seemed. How we longed for the old home and the beautiful trees. The timber that had seemed so useless and was going to waste, how we would appreciate it now if we had it! So it is in life - never satisfied, always wanting the things that are just out of sight. We burned anything we could find for fuel, even cornstalks and sunflowers.

"On October 19 there was an ad in the Lincoln paper that read like this, 'The Bohanan Brothers have for sale 3,000 pounds of fresh buffalo meat.' This interested the menfolks very much, and they inquired as to where they got the meat. This made them more anxious than ever to go hunting. But they were compelled to work if they could find anything to do for we were out of funds and needed money.

"Mr. Canaga tried to get work but there were three men for every job. After it quit raining and the mud dried up he got a job of shucking corn, provided he would take 200 pounds of flour for pay. He was glad to do that. He heard of a place along the creek where there were some stumps standing, that he could have for wood if he wanted to chop them up. When the weather was bad so he could not shuck corn, he would chop on those stumps. He hauled a load to Lincoln and exchanged it for groceries and a piece of pork. We were glad to get meat; it was the first we had had for a long time.

"Father and Mother moved in with a bachelor. They were about two miles from us. Father helped the bachelor get his corn out and Mother did the cooking. In that way they went through the winter very nicely. In the spring, Father got a job hauling two loads of lumber to Crete. He told Mr. Canaga that he could haul one load if he wanted the job. Sister Lib said she would stay nights with me while they were gone. She was seventeen years old but was afraid of the Indians the same as I was. The people had told so many stories about the 'Wild West' that we were afraid to step out of the house.

"When the first night came we put the baby to sleep, blinded the windows, and locked the door. We decided to play a game of checkers to pass away the time. We made a checkerboard and sat down on the floor to play. We didn't have any chairs, not even a stool to sit on. We were afraid to talk out loud for fear an Indian would hear us. We thought they might be slipping around outside. We could hear the hungry coyotes with their wild, half-human screams, as terrifying as an Indian war-whoop. The longer we sat there the more frightened we became. We could not keep our minds on the game. We were afraid to make a sound. Finally we tiptoed off to bed.

"We could not sleep much. We could hear peculiar sounds outside all night long. It sounded as though someone was dying. Such a mournful sound, it frightened us nearly to death. The next morning as soon as it was daylight outside we jumped out of bed and thanked the Lord we were alive. We fed the baby and got our breakfast and looked all around outside to see if there had been any Indians near the house. We could find no trace of anyone having been there. Sister

Lib stayed most of the day with me, then she said she had better go home before dark for the men would soon be there.

"I waited and waited but the men did not come. Dark came and I was still alone. What could I do? Suppose they did not come? Oh, what a long, lonely night I put in waiting. The sky was clear and bright, but the thought of being alone in a strange country, two miles from any living person and knowing about the many cruel and wicked things the Indians were doing, just made my blood run cold. I was afraid they would come while I was alone. I could hear the mournful howl of the coyotes, the wailing of the wind, and the hideous cry of cats. Perspiration stood out on my face till I looked as though I had been ducked in the river.

"Every little while I would hear a mournful sound, like someone dying or in need of help. I thought this was a warning, that some of the menfolks had been killed by the Indians. It seemed I could never endure it till morning. Every little while I would get up and tiptoe to the door, open it just a little and peep out and listen for the sound of the wagon. No sound like a wagon came, only those hideous sounds could be heard.

"Morning dawned at last. I again opened the door just a little to look out, to listen for the wagon again. I left it open a little and turned around to start the fire. A shadow appeared on the floor in front of me. I thought it was an Indian. I could not speak, I almost fainted, but it was my sister. She took me in her arms and we laughed and cried together. She knew that the men did not get back and that I was alone all night. I told her of the doleful sound that I had heard all night long. 'Listen,' she said, 'There it is again.' We listened, stepped to the door, listened again, walked to the corner of the house outside and kicked over a jug that was standing there, and the sound stopped. What a relief to know that it was the wind blowing in that jug.

"Lib said she believed the men had had bad luck or they would have been home before. She also said she would never leave me alone again. That day about four o'clock they returned. Mr. Canaga said they had loaded his wagon too heavy and it had broken down. One wheel was smashed. It cost more to get it repaired than he got out of the hauling.

"Winter came on very cold and severe. We suffered much for we did not have enough fuel to burn or enough clothing to keep us warm. In the daytime we would hang up the bedding around the wall to keep out the cold and at night we would take it down and put it on the bed. Many times we were without food.

"Mr. Canaga was an infidel. He said he would never allow our children to attend church or read the Bible. This worried me very much, but I thought I might be able to convince him differently by the time the children were old enough to understand. One day after we had had a talk on this subject, we were walking in the old garden spot near the house. I picked up an ear of corn and was removing the kernels from the cob as I was walking back and forth, not realizing what I was doing.

"'Elias,' I asked, 'what will we have for breakfast in the morning?' I had cooked everything we had for supper.

"He looked up at me and said, 'According to your belief, the Lord will provide for us.'

"This hurt me for I had always said that the Lord will help those who help themselves. I walked back and forth and as I walked I shelled the corn and put it on a box that stood there. I was so interested in the subject that we were talking about that I did not realize what I was doing. After some time we went in the house, wondering what we would have for breakfast. We went to bed that night not knowing where we would get the next meal to eat.

"Morning came. Mr. Canaga started the fire as usual, walked over to the door, opened it and looked out. He noticed that the box that I had put the corn in had been moved. He said, 'Ellen, I believe you have caught a chicken.' I hurried to the door to see what he meant. There in that box was a prairie chicken. The box had been made with a figure four under it for a chicken trap. We did not know it before.

"We cooked the chicken for breakfast. While we were seated at the table the thought came to me of what we had said the night before. I said, 'The Lord did send us something to eat, didn't He?'

"Mr. Canaga just smiled. I am sure he thought it the hand of Providence but he did not say a word. Thus we went through the winter, not knowing where we would get the next meal.

"Spring came at last. My health was much improved and we commenced work with new hope and courage. We rented a farm six miles north of Lincoln. It had a large stone house with full basement. There had never been any doors or windows put in the frames. It was nice and cool in the summertime, but cold in winter. The flies did not bother then as they do now. Just the mosquitoes were bad. We would build smudges to keep them away. The landlord furnished everything and we gave him half of the crop.

"On the 17th day of May, 1871, sixty-seven immigrant wagons passed through Lincoln. People were coming from all over the East to settle in Nebraska, so we did not feel so much alone anymore.

"After the crops were all planted, Mr. Canaga and several other men started farther west to look up a location and to file on a claim. They thought it would be best to locate near a stream of water so they would have wood to burn and it would be easier to get water. The wells were all dug by hand with a spade. That was a long, hard job and very dangerous if they had to dig very deep.

"They found land in Harlan County that looked good to them. They all filed on preemptions between Republican City and Alma. On Methodist Creek was plenty of wood and water, and easy to get. Soldiers were located at Republican City to protect the settlers from the Indians. The Indians were all over the state at that time and caused a great deal of trouble, even killing many people.

"Our preemption was at the mouth of Methodist Creek. Father located near us. My uncle was one mile away. My uncle was the only man who had any money. He helped the others to file on their claims.

"They returned to Lincoln, the happiest men you ever saw. They told many interesting stories about the beautiful country in which they had chosen their homes. Mr. Canaga was anxious for me to see our new place, and I was too.

"In September he was going back to put up some buildings, and I went with him. When we arrived and I saw the land that he had filed on I declared that we were rich without a dollar in our pockets. We were so happy to know that we had a place to call our own. How bright the future looked. We had received the thing that we had come so far to get, a farm of our own, a home.

"I realized that we were on the frontier and kept looking for an Indian to appear, but he told me there was no danger as long as the soldiers were near.

"Mr. Canaga cut and hauled the logs to build a house, but we could not stay long enough to build it. We had to go back and harvest our crops. It took several days to make the trip back with team and wagon. We started back to Lincoln by following the Republican River for three days. Then we went across the divide to the Little Blue River to the northeast. There was not a road or guide post as we have now. No familiar neighbors passing. Not a thing in sight but prairie grass.

"We traveled late that evening in order to get water and grass for the horses. There was a boy riding with my uncle who had been out here for sometime and wanted to go back home, so Uncle told him he could ride with him. About dark the men thought they had found a good place to camp, so we stopped. It was a low place surrounded on three sides by hills. A small body of water nearby looked like it was fed from a spring. The water was clear and cold. The wind was blowing hard from the south. The sky was very red. Something unusual about the atmosphere attracted our attention.

"The boy who was with my uncle said, 'It looks like a prairie fire coming!' This frightened us for we had heard so much about fires on the plains, but had never seen one. The men unhitched the horses as soon as they could and staked them out on the grass. The wind seemed to be coming harder and harder. By this time it was blowing a hurricane. The men ran to the top of the hill to see if there was anything in sight. I sat in the wagon with my baby in my arms, not knowing what to do. I thought we would soon be burned up.

"The men looked south, then turned and came back on the run. I knew by this it must be a fire coming. The boy was ahead. He gathered the horses together close to the wagon, then took some grain sacks from the wagon and soaked them in water, walked a few steps to the north of the wagon and started another fire. We could not understand why he did this. He took bunches of burning grass and scattered the fire. After a small patch was burned off they moved the wagon and horses on it. They beat the back fire out with wet sacks. The wind was terrific and the smoke so thick that we could hardly get our breath. I covered my head and the baby's with the quilts to keep her from smothering to death. The fire passed quickly and then we could breathe again, but the air was now filled with black cinders. Again I thanked the Lord for sparing our lives. We would have all been burned up if it had not been for the wisdom of the boy.

"When daylight came, what a blackened world! Everything as far as you could see was a sheet of smoldering ashes. We could now see more plainly than ever the narrow escape we had had. We traveled all the next day and did not see a spear of green grass. The horses were tired and hungry but no hay or grass was left. The fire had burned over thousands of acres of ground.

"When we arrived at Crete, Nebraska, the boy who had helped to save our lives left us. We never knew who he was and we never saw him again, but his kindness still lingers in our memory.

"The fifth day we arrived home, tired and weary, but glad to get back alive. At this time we thought there was to be a great future for Nebraska.

"On the 7th day of September, 1871, the Nebraska State University opened its doors for the first time. This encouraged people more than ever to come to Nebraska, where they could educate their children in the higher learning.

"As soon as the men could, they commenced to harvest crops and get ready for the winter. On account of the dry, hot summer the corn was not very good. And it was worth only fifteen cents a bushel on the market. As soon as the men were done shucking the corn they were going back to their claims in Harlan County to put up their buildings. My husband was to take back a load of corn. Our wagon was quite new but it had been driven many miles over the dry, dusty roads, and had stood out in the sun and wind. The tires were getting loose. So the day before they were to start back he ran the wagon into a mud hole to soak up the tires. When he was ready to get it out he called on me to help him push it. I took a quilt out with me and spread it on the ground, then set the baby on it and went to help him.

"We pulled the wagon out of the mud hole and were looking to see if the tires were tight enough to stand the trip, when we heard the baby scream. I ran to her and there beside her were two rattlesnakes, one on each side of her. I screamed, ran, and picked the baby up. My husband came to see what was the matter. He soon killed the snakes. I undressed the baby and looked her all over to see if she had been bitten, but she had not. I trembled all over I was so frightened.

"My folks joined the train of covered wagons and started back to their claims in Harlan County. My uncle took his family along for they were ready, and expected to camp out till they could build a house to live in. My youngest brother, Joe, a lad about ten years old, was to stay with me while my husband was gone.

"The fall weather was very changeable. Some days it was hot, then it would suddenly turn cold. The baby had commenced to walk a little. She liked to be outdoors when it was warm. One day, while the sun was shining bright and warm, I thought it best to let her out in the sunshine. I took her out and put her down close to the house to let her play in the dirt. Then I went back in the house and sat down by the window where I could watch her. Joe sat close to me. He wanted me to play checkers with him.

"Suddenly he looked and said, 'Ellen, look at that big dog!' There within a few feet of my baby was a big gray wolf, slipping along like a cat after my baby. We both ran out screaming and making all the noise we could to scare him away. I picked the baby up and ran into the house with her. At first the wolf was startled; he looked up as if to see what had happened, then he trotted away to the canyon.

"Days and days would go by and we would never see a person. We would get so lonesome and homesick at times that it seemed we could endure it no longer. There was no way that we could hear from the folks that had gone to their claims in the West. We did not know whether they were dead or alive. We worried for fear they had been killed by Indians. Oh, those long dreary nights! I sometimes dream of them to this day.

"When we thought it about time for the folks to return, we began to watch the road for their return. We were out of provisions and did not have any money to buy more. We did not know what to do. We were too proud to beg - but the baby, we could not see her starve. What were we to do?

"The man that we were renting from had left a pony for us to take care of and I persuaded Joe to get on the pony and go to a neighbor who lived a mile and a half away to see if he could get some sweet milk. When he got there the neighbor said she did not have any milk to spare. I could not keep my courage any longer when I saw him coming back swinging the empty pail. I sat down and cried. The baby was also crying, but for something to eat.

"I begged Joe to go over on Salt Creek, to the next nearest neighbor who lived two miles away, and see if he could get milk there. I told him the baby would starve to death unless we could get something for her. He, being very fond of the baby, said, 'I will risk my life for her.' He started out again.

"It was not long till he returned with a nice pail of milk. A friend in need is a friend indeed. The lady told him we could have milk every day if we wanted it. Words could not express my gratitude. We had been living for four days on squash alone.

"We would often stand in the doorway and look over toward Lincoln and watch for a covered wagon. The man that we were renting from and another man went by one day while they were out hunting. They had some prairie chickens and rabbits strapped to their backs. I tried to get Joe to go out and ask them for one, but he said, 'No, Ellen, I would rather starve than beg.'

"I had a bit of bread that I had been saving, with a little sugar. I took this and soaked it in vinegar and water and gave it to the baby. Now all was gone. I did not have another thing I could feed her.

"Away in the distance on the road to Lincoln was a high hill. We would often walk there, for we could see for miles from that hill, and we would watch from there for the covered wagon to come back. But all the wagons seemed to be going in the opposite direction instead of coming. One day while we were there watching just as the sun sank behind the cold, white hills, and with it almost my last hope, we saw in the distance a covered wagon slowly approaching. We thought it some of our folks, but there was only one wagon. We could not understand that.

"'Perhaps the others have stopped to rest their horses,' I said.

"Joe said he would get the pony and take the baby in his arms and we would go and meet them. We met them about half a mile away. It was Father and his family. I asked where Mr. Canaga was. They told me, 'He is still on the claim and will be gone two weeks longer.'

"I sat down in the buffalo grass and began to cry. I could not hold up any longer. They tried to console me, but it seemed as though my heart would break. At last Joe said, 'It is no wonder Ellen is crying. We have been living on nothing but squash for days and days. She is weak and hungry.' They helped me into the wagon and we went home. They had some dry bread and some buffalo meat in their grub box. We ate that for supper and breakfast.

"The next morning Father and my two brothers, Jacob and Joe, got a load of corn and Father and I took it to Lincoln. I left the baby with Mother. I had a quilt that I had pieced, called the 'Wreath of Roses,' and thought I would take that along and perhaps I could sell it. I hated to part with it, but said to myself if it is ever so I can, I will piece another one like it.

"Father sold his corn for fifteen cents a bushel. I took the quilt to a lady who was clerking in one of the stores and asked her if she wanted to buy it. She said, 'How much do you want for it?' I replied, '$4.50.'

"She said if I would trade it out she would take it, and I said I would be glad to. I got fifty pounds of flour, some bacon and a pair of shoes for the baby, and enough yarn to knit two pairs of stockings for her. How proud I was to think that I had done something to help along.

"The weather was getting cold and the house we were living in had not been finished. The baby had been without shoes or stockings, so I took the yarn I had bought and hurriedly knit her some.

"Just before Christmas my husband came home. He told of how he had built a log cabin and had things ready for us to move on the claim in Harlan County in the spring.

"The winter was very cold. Coal was high-priced so most of the farmers burned corn for fuel. It was even cheaper than wood. The only stove we had was the cook stove and it did not heat the room very much. One day, while my husband was gone to town with a load of corn, I ran out of anything to burn. It was too cold to take the baby out of doors so I put her to sleep, laid her in the box cradle, and tied her in so she would not fall out if she woke up. I found a sack and ran as fast as I could to the corn field to get some corn to burn. The field was about one mile away. I got the corn as quickly as I could and hurried back.

"When I arrived the baby was trying to cry but she was so hoarse she could hardly make a sound. Her hands were like ice. I picked her up and hugged her close to my breast till she was warm, for the house was cold and there was no fire. By the time she was warm my feet were frosted. She sobbed and sobbed herself asleep again. Then I laid her down and started the fire. When my feet began to get warm they hurt me so, I could hardly stand it. They hurt me all winter. But this was only the beginning of things, as we found out later.

"My sister, Lib, as we called her, was working in Lincoln. While there she met some young folks and I thought it would be nice to have them eat Christmas dinner with us. Lib thought that would be fine so we invited them. My folks were all coming over for Christmas. We had lived on the frontier long enough that we had learned how to catch wild chickens and quail with a box trap, and there were plenty of them. We made a box and turned it upside down on a figure four that we made out of sticks. We put the bait on the figure four and when the chickens or quail would try to pick it off they would spring the trap and the box would fall to the ground with the chickens under it.

"We planned to have a big chicken dinner before we were to leave Lincoln for our preemptions in Harlan County. This was the first time we had entertained since coming to the state. The dinner consisted of cold prairie chickens and quail with dumplings, mashed potatoes, cornbread and beans. The young lady who came with my sister was very beautiful. We were all admiring her. We were trying to entertain as best we could, under the circumstances. After we had been eating for some time I passed the dish of dumplings again. Sister passed it to the young lady. The young lady shoved back from the table and said, 'No, by gosh, I've had enough.' This came so unexpectedly that my sister laughed very loud. The young man who was with the young lady blushed and looked so surprised he could not say a word.

"In the spring my uncle came back from Harlan County to get a load of corn as there wasn't any corn raised any closer than Lincoln. While he was there my sister decided to get married while we were all together. Arrangements were made and the wedding took place at my father's house. She married John Stearns. They started housekeeping near Lincoln. We were getting ready to move to our preemption and I hated to go on and leave her. She was very jolly and was a great comfort to me, as she was the only sister I had.

"We moved from Lincoln to Harlan County on the 15th of April, 1872. Father was not ready to move just then, so came a month later. My uncle went back with us with a load of corn. Our wagons were very heavily loaded. We had to drive slowly and at night sleep on the ground for there was no place in the wagons to sleep. We were getting along nicely till about the fourth day when a bad storm came up. We stopped at a sod house to get warm and eat our dinner. We were going by way of the Oregon Trail, as we thought there would be more travel this way. We were on the Platte River.

"We stayed at this place two hours and the storm kept getting worse instead of better. It was blowing and snowing, at times rain and sleet. The people were very kind to us and seemed glad to see us. They wanted to know where we were from; we told them Michigan. 'That is the place we came from!' they said. And of course we felt acquainted right away. We spoke of different people and they were acquainted with the same people.

"The lady spoke up and said, 'By the way, did you know Boney Hamp?' I said I did, that I had introduced him to a schoolmate and they were married just four weeks later.

"'They are living about four miles from here, right on your road,' she told me.

"I said to Mr. Canaga, 'Suppose we hitch up and drive to their place for the night?'

"He wanted to know if I could stand the cold and rain. I told him I could, so he hitched up the horses and we started on. We were facing the storm, and it was getting worse. Water was freezing on everything. The horses were getting so wet and cold they could hardly face it any longer. It was dark and no house was in sight. We traveled on and on till the horses would go no farther. I said those people in the soddy must have been mistaken, for we have not seen a house since we left. Everything was now covered with ice and snow. What were we to do? We could go no farther and we could not make our beds on that ice.

"We stopped and unhitched the horses and fed them. Mr. Canaga held a quilt up by the wagon while my uncle spread some hay on the ground for me to make a bed on. I put the bedding on the hay and we lay down in the storm to sleep. We did not sleep much, but as the gray dawn crept over the hills the wind ceased and it quit storming.

"After I had prepared breakfast I saw smoke coming from the ground about a quarter of a mile away. I thought someone must live there in a dugout, and said I would like to go over there and get warm.

"My husband replied, 'You will have to wade through water to get there.'

"'That will be all right for I could not be any wetter than I am right now.'

"I started out with my baby in my arms. When I arrived at the place I saw a small dugout in the side of the bank with only one window in it, and that was in the door that I knocked on. A lady came to the door and opened it. It was my old schoolmate, but she did not recognize me. She invited me in and said, 'This is bad weather for you to be out with a baby.' She told me to take off my wraps and get warm. I did, and my feet were so wet and cold that she urged me to take off my shoes. I took them off and poured the water out of them. I wrung the water out of my hose and hung them on the oven door to dry, then held my feet in the oven to get warm.

"I sat there for some time talking about the weather and frontier life. At last I said, 'Mary, have you forgotten me?'

"She came up close and said, 'Why, who are you?'

"I told her my maiden name and she threw both arms around my neck and cried. 'To think you camped out in this awful storm in sight of our house and we did not know it. Our dugout is only twelve feet square and we only have two beds but we still have room for you. We do not have any chairs to sit on but you are welcome just the same.'

"They had four small children. Her husband went out to the road where the men were and had them come over for breakfast. We enjoyed ourselves very much and had a nice visit. They told us about the Indians and how cruel they were. They said Mr. Martin and his two sons were hauling hay about three miles from home when the father, who was riding on the first load of hay, was attacked first and severely wounded. One arrow penetrated the hay and struck him on the collar bone. He realized by this time that he could not save himself by running. He then turned his rifle down upon them and fired as he ran.

"They soon left him and ran for the boys. The little boys saw them coming and cut out across the field for home. The Indians rode up behind them and shot an arrow into them, pinning the boys together as they sat on the horse. They fell to the ground and the Indians thinking them dead, rode on. The father saw them fall from the horse, and he too, thought they were dead. He went on to the house, got the rest of the family and started to a neighbor's, leaving the boys dead, as he supposed. He had not gone far when one of the horses that he was driving fell dead. On examining the horse he found an arrow had penetrated his body.

"He put his wife and baby on the other horse and the rest of the family went on foot. They arrived at the neighbor's house but they had not been molested. They all wept on account of the little boys who had been killed. Early the next morning the men took their guns and went in search of the bodies. They went to the place the boys had fallen off the horse, but they were not there. They then slipped in the house where they found traces of blood on the floor. They could not understand where the blood came from. They searched the barn yard and there hid away were the boys, alive.

"The boys said they lay real still until the Indians were gone. They drew the arrow out, which had only passed through their clothing and just entered the flesh of their bodies. They went to the house and found the family all gone. They did not know whether they had been killed or not. They found some tobacco and put it on their wounds then they hid in the sod barn, where they were found the next morning. The boys soon recovered. This story made us more fearful than ever of the Indians.

"After breakfast we started on our journey again. The weather had moderated and the sun was shining part of the time. The next day we left the Oregon Trail just west of Lowell and started across the divide to the Republican River. There was not much of a road; in fact, just a trail across the prairie. I was getting so tired of riding that I thought I would put the baby to sleep, and then get out and walk awhile. I walked for some time keeping close to the wagon for I was afraid of Indians and Texas cattle, as well as wild animals. I noticed a grave with a marble slab at the head and one at the foot, near the road. This attracted my attention, to see a tombstone in such a new country. The grass had grown over the grave so as to almost hide it from sight. I walked to the grave to see what was written on the stone. I thought it the most beautiful verse I had ever read. The words were as follows:

Remember well, while passing by,
As you are now, so once was I.
As I am now, so you will be,
Prepare in life, to follow me.

"I read it over and over again, till I had it committed to memory. My health was very poorly and I thought it would not be long till it would come true. And I wanted that verse on my tombstone. I was so interested in the verse that I forgot everything. When I looked up to see where the wagon was, it was about three miles away. They had not missed me, for they were so busy with the team.

"I tried to run, but soon tired out. I was afraid to call for fear some Indian would hear me. It seemed that I could never catch up with them. I hurried as fast as I could, repeating the verse as I went, for fear I would forget it. They saw me coming and waited for me.

"When I caught up with them, they wanted to know what I had been doing. They said they were hurrying as fast as they could so as to make the half-way house by noon (that was Walker's Ranch) for it was not safe to camp out on the prairie alone, besides there was no other place that we could get water. It was one o'clock when we arrived at Walker's Ranch, now called Wilcox. They watered the horses by paying ten cents a head for the water. The well had been dug by hand with a spade; it was 216 feet deep.

"The people there told us that the day before we arrived their two-year-old heifer fell to the bottom of the well. They worked for hours before they pulled her out. A man had to go down into the well and tie a rope on her, then pull her out with a rope and pulley. She was badly chilled, but after she was warmed up she began to graze as though nothing had aappened to her.

"While we were there I wrote down the verse I found written on the tombstone so as not to forget it. We filled our jugs with water and started on again. That night we had to camp out on the high divide without any water for the horses. We built a campfire out of buffalo chips to cook our supper on and used the water in the jugs for coffee. By this time we had learned how to cook with buffalo chips for fuel and we got along very nicely. The next day we arrived on the Republican River. We refilled the water jugs and watered the horses. We knew now that we were near home.

"That night we camped near a little stream that emptied into the Republican. There we found a dugout with some people living in it. They told us that some emigrants had camped there the week before and had lost their little girl, three years old. They hunted for her for three days and nights but could not find her. They thought the wolves had eaten her up, so drove on without her.

"Two more days of hard travel and we landed on our claim. It was May 7, 1872. We were tired and hungry, but very happy. It was 'Home, Sweet Home' to us.

"The next morning the sun shone more beautiful. We at once started to fix up the place. The house was built of logs, and the roof was made of poles with brush on top of them and then sod on top of the brush. It kept out the cold but not the rain. We had one room, with two windows and one door. We were very proud of it and glad to be in a home of our own - one that we had built ourselves. Now we were ready to enjoy life.

"Mr. Canaga took the boxes that our goods were packed in, and made me a cupboard. Put one on top of another, with one shelf in each box. I made a curtain out of an old dress to hang in front of it. I thought this would keep out the flies and the dust. We had lived outdoors so long that it seemed strange to live in a house again. It seemed so close and hard to get our breath, and so warm that we could hardly sleep. So we just left the door open at night.

"One night we heard something rattling among the dishes. I said, 'Someone is in the room.' Mr. Canaga got up and there was a skunk in the cupboard. One morning while I was getting breakfast I went to the box cupboard in a hurry, reached under the curtain, picked up the meat plate and walked to the table. When I looked down there was a large centipede lying on the plate. I was so frightened that I could not let go of the plate, but just stood there and screamed. Mr. Canaga took it out of my hands and knocked the centipede into the fire. It was about nine inches long. The large ones were considered very poisonous.

"On May 21, 1872, our second child was born, a boy. We named him Thomas Benton Canaga. He was the second white child born in Harlan County, Nebraska. We now had a girl and a boy, which were a great comfort to me when I was alone. There were no doctors we could get in time of sickness, so my aunt came and took care of the baby and me. The neighbor women were also in attendance and very kind and helpful.

"That spring Mr. Canaga broke up and planted fifteen acres in corn and potatoes, watermelons and some other things. I helped him all I could for I enjoyed being out of doors. Our nearest railroad town was Lowell. We had to drive there in a lumber wagon for our provisions. It was about fifty miles away. It took several days to make the round trip with the team for there were no roads, just a trail. When one man in the neighborhood was going, he was always heavily loaded for he would haul for all the other neighbors. A gun was carried in case of Indian attack, also to keep off wild horses and Texas cattle which were very numerous. It was very dangerous camping out on the prairie alone.

"The menfolk thought it great sport to catch wild horses and break them to ride and work. If you needed a horse, all you had to do was to catch one and break it, and it was yours; nobody claimed them.

"We had plenty of moisture that year and crops were good. Our thoughts were on the future as to how we would educate and bring up our children to make them good citizens. I was kept busy, taking care of the children and doing everything I could in the way of raising chickens and growing a garden. I had ten hens and a rooster to start with. I raised twentyfour young chickens by hand, as we did not have brooders. I wouldn't kill any of them to eat. I wanted to keep them for next year so I could raise a lot more.

"We lived mostly upon the resources of the country. The only fruit we could get was wild plums, chokecherries and grapes. Sometimes the folks back east would send us dried apples and peaches.

"We planted sorghum and when it was at the right stage we would strip it of its leaves and cut the top out and let it stand awhile, then cut it and haul it to a neighbor who had a sorghum mill. He would press the juice out and boil it down into a molasses, for half. We used this to spread on our bread, also to cook with. Our principal diet was cornbread and molasses. This was very wholesome, but we did get tired of it.

"We rendered out tallow from beef and buffalo meat and made candles. The light was not bright enough to see to read by but that was all right, for we didn't have anything to read. Not many of the pioneers were able to bring books with them on account of being so heavily loaded with the necessities of life. Mothers spent their evenings knitting stockings, wristlets, sweaters and scarves. They did not need much light to see to knit, they had done so much of it.

"The men would rest or spend their evenings braiding ropes. The soldiers had taught them how to make ropes. Ropes were scarce and very useful to the pioneers. They took the hides from cattle or buffalo, scoured them with salt, then cut them into strips or rawhide strings. They used three strands for flat braid and four for round braids.

"Wild game was plentiful at first, including buffalo, elk, antelope and deer, prairie chickens, wild turkeys, quail and jack rabbits.

"There were no roads or bridges. When we wanted to go anyplace we started out in a general direction and went as far as we could, then around the head of a pocket or canyon, then in another direction. When we came to a stream of water we would ford it and we had to be on the watchout for quicksand. Thus we traveled till we arrived at our destination. If a storm came up while we were out we would look for a canyon to get into for protection. There was always a terrific wind with every storm, in the summer time with hail and in winter time a blizzard, which the horses would not face.

"Mother and I were out walking one day and saw something red in the distance. We wondered what it could be so we started out to see what it was. As we drew near we saw it was a deviltongue cactus. We were counting the blossoms on it when we heard someone shooting to the west of us. We looked up and saw a wounded buffalo coming toward us. We tried to run and I fell down; I had stepped into a hole. I could go no farther. The buffalo was within a few feet of us, when our dogs came out from the house and barked, causing the animal to turn and run in another direction. We did not tarry very long after that and I hobbled along, with Mother's help, to the house.

"There was something exciting going on all the time, night and day. This was indeed frontier life, and that was what the menfolk enjoyed.

"Our little girl was now about two years old. She slept at the foot of our bed. One morning about daybreak we were awakened by the sound of her voice. We looked to see where she was. There in the doorway stood our little girl in her nightgown, wet all over. At first we could not understand where she had been, for we had not missed her. We jumped out of bed and ran to her, and she took hold of my hand and pulled me outdoors. I followed her to the edge of the creek. The creek was full of water, from bank to bank, a raging torrent. We had not had any rain but it must have rained north of us. She had got wet wading in the tall grass so I took her home and dressed her as quickly as I could. After that I had to watch her closely to keep her from the stream.

"That summer, after the crops were laid aside, Mr. Canaga decided he would go over on the Platte River and work through the haying season. We needed all the cash we could get for we did not have crops enough to sell. He went the last of July, just before the watermelons were ripe. I told him he would miss the melons.

"'I can't help it,' he said, 'we must have something to live on and buy clothes with. Maybe there will be some left when I get back.'

"Brother Joe was to stay with me while he was gone. The watermelons were the nicest I ever saw. I picked out five of the largest and covered them with hay so they would keep, and told Joe not to pick them. When we thought it was about time for Mr. Canaga to come home we kept watch of the road, looking for him. Our provisions were running short. We were out of flour and meat, but had plenty of garden truck. We did not have any cows so had to do without milk.

"While my husband was gone we stayed alone most of the time during the day and in the evenings we would shut up the chickens just as soon as they would go to roost. Then we would go to Mother's to spend the night. We were afraid of Indians and did not want to stay alone. Mother lived close, so Brother Joe would carry one of the children and I would carry the other. We always had to walk as there was no other way to go.

"One day Joe wanted to stay with Mother and not go home with me. He said he would keep the little girl there if I would let him stay. So I said, 'All right, I guess I can get along alone for one day.'

"I took the baby in my arms and started off alone. I arrived home safely and got along very nicely till about one o'clock. I was standing in the door just glancing around and wondering when Mr. Canaga would get home when I looked up the road and saw seventeen Indians coming toward the house. They were riding ponies and had feathers on their heads and were painted in bright colors. I had often heard that when they were dressed in bright colors they were on the warpath.

"These were the first Indians I had ever seen, but I knew they were Indians by the way they dressed. I was so frightened my heart almost quit beating. I didn't know what to do. There I was alone with my baby. I also knew that the soldiers had been moved from Republican City and there was no protection in the neighborhood. There I was, without a gun in the house. I looked at the baby in the cradle and wondered what I could do to protect it. I thought of the stories I had heard about how cruel Indians had been to children.

"I thought of an old pair of sheep shears that we had, and they were very sharp. I ran and got them and hid them under the cradle. I decided if we had to die, I would not give up without getting one of them, too.

"I sat down by the cradle, waiting for my time to come. There was no use to run. It was like waiting to die. My heart seemed to quit beating; the baby slept on. They came to the door and said something rough. I could not understand them. Then they walked into the house and I spoke to them. I thought by the way they acted they were hungry and wanted something to eat. They looked in the box cupboard and in the flour barrel, and all around the room. They filled the room. I did not have a thing in the house to eat. They looked at each other and laughed and talked. One of them I could understand a little; he talked broken. He looked at me and motioned to his mouth and said, 'Melons.' I told them where the melon patch was so they would go away. They all left the room and went out to the melon patch. How glad I was, for I thought now I am rid of them.

"I stayed by the cradle and watched. After awhile I saw them coming back and thought that they were coming back to kill me, but they passed the door and did not stop. I watched them and soon discovered that there was a whole tribe of them, not half a mile from the house. This frightened me more than ever, for I thought they were plotting to destroy everything we had and then kill me.

"Just before one of the Indians who had been in our house met the others, he gave a whoop and waved his arm and came running back. I grabbed the sheep shears again, for I thought they were all coming back. He ran past the door and out into the melon patch and then returned. He was swinging a large tomahawk and said as he passed the door, 'Good paleface squaw.' I cannot express how I felt. Words fail me, for when I first saw them I was sure they were coming to kill me.

"Father and Mother were living on the main road and, of course, I thought they were all murdered, and my little girl, too.

"As soon as the Indians were out of sight, I took my baby in my arms and ran up to Mother's house. The Indians had been there, too, but had not harmed them any. We found out later that they were the Pawnee Indians, and had been out west on a buffalo hunt.

"The next morning Joe and I went home. They had eaten and destroyed every melon in the patch, even the ones I had covered with straw.

"My husband came home in a few days. I saw him as soon as he came in sight of the house. I had been looking for him for several days and hoping that he would soon come home. We had not heard a word from him since he had left as there was no way to send a message, either by wire or mail. Lowell was the nearest town where we could get our mail and that was a very long way off. We did not get the mail very often.

"We were very glad to see him but we did not have any watermelons for him. I was feeling very badly about it and told him what had happened to them. He said, 'That is fine with me. We had all the melons we could eat where I have been working.'

"Mr. Canaga at once began to cut his hay and harvest the crops. He had more corn than he needed so he traded it for a heifer that was to be fresh soon. We raised enough potatoes to last us till we could raise another crop. We were pleased to think we had plenty of clothes and enough to eat, and wood to keep us warm for the winter.

"A man started up a sawmill just three miles from us. This gave the menfolk work all winter cutting down trees and hauling logs to the mill. They sawed the trees down with a crosscut saw and hauled them with oxen. This was a new industry for this part of the country. The trees were not large - mostly cottonwood, box elder, elm and ash - but we were glad to get a board of any kind to build with. They used ox teams in the timber because the horses they had were not heavy enough. They were wild horses brought from the range in Oregon or caught on the range in Nebraska.

"We bought enough rough lumber to put a floor in the house. We also built a corn crib and a shed for the cow, covered the cow shed with hay and piled hay all around it to keep it warm. We thought we were progressing nicely, and were very happy.

"Mr. Canaga and my two brothers, John and Jacob, spent much time hunting and fishing, for this was the way we derived most of our meat.

"One day a neighbor came along and wanted my husband to go with him on a buffalo hunt. He did not have a team of horses and he wanted my husband to take his. I begged him not to go, for I was afraid to stay alone again.

"I asked, 'What could I do if a prairie fire should come, with these two children to take care of and grass knee high all around the house?' But he said he guessed there was no danger on account of the creek being on one side and the river on the other. He did not think a fire would jump over them.

"I prepared his grub box and the next morning they started, leaving instructions for me to shut the heifer up every night in that hay pen, which I did. Joe was going to stay with me again.

"Mr. Canaga had been gone about a week when the cow was fresh. Joe and I and the children went up to get Father to come and milk the cow. She had never been milked before. When we got there Father said it was too late to bother with her that night but he would go early in the morning.

"The next morning he got up before we did and went down and milked her. When he returned he said, 'I set the milk in the house and you can feed it to the chickens when you get back.'

"We did not start home that day till about one o'clock.

Mother was out in the yard and she noticed that the wind was blowing very hard from the south and that there was a peculiarity about the atmosphere. She came in the house and said, 'There must be an awful storm coming. Just see how black it is in the south.' Father looked out and shouted, 'It is a prairie fire!'

"'Oh, my cow,' I thought, 'shut up in that hay shed; she will burn up.' I left the children there and started home.

"Father said, 'Come back, you can never get there,' but he was so busy with his own things that he did not notice that I kept on going.

"Jacob started after me, soon passed me and ran on. We ran all the way and before reaching the house saw the fire cross the river. A burning tumbleweed carried it across. The flames were so close the back of my neck was burning.

"Jacob ran to the corral and threw the fence down and the cow took her calf and went to some plowed ground that was near just as the shed that she had been in took fire. I thought my brother had been burned to death, when all at once he fell in the doorway of the house.

"I picked him up and in a few seconds he was able to tell me how he had let the cow out of the barn and then stopped to get a breath behind the corn crib out of the smoke.

"The gunnysacks that I had on the floor for a carpet, I picked up and wet in the bucket of milk that Father had set in the house when he milked the cow. There was no water in the house. When the house would take fire we would beat the flames out with the wet gunnysacks. After the head fire was past we carried water from the creek, and in this way saved the house.

"When the fire had passed by, there was not a thing left but the black smoldering ground. Our stable, the hen house and corn crib and hay were all gone. Everything was burned up but the house. I could see some of the chickens up in the tree tops along the creek. Before the fire I had five hens setting. They were burned up and the eggs, too.

"We were gone so long Mother began to get uneasy. She asked a neighbor boy to get on a horse and see if he could find us. The only hope that they had was that we had jumped in the water of the creek and had been saved that way. We first thought of getting in the creek but gave up when we saw the tall grass on both sides was afire, and the flames were leaping from bank to bank.

"When the boy arrived I was having a chill and could not speak. He at once rode back to tell my mother that we were still alive, but that they must go and get us. Father soon came after us. We stayed with my parents until my husband came home, going back and forth to milk the cow. You cannot realize what a terrible thing a prairie fire is unless you have been in one. The wind blew for days afterward and the air was so full of ashes and cinders that you could only see a few feet ahead.

"It was about a week after the fire that my husband came home. It was midnight, very dark and the black ground helped to make things worse. He had driven a long way that day in order to get home that night. The team was so tired and hungry that they could not go any farther. He drove up in front of the house, unhitched the team and started for the barn. The barn was not there, neither was the hay. He brought the team back and tied the horses to the wagon. He then went to see if the corn crib had been burned. It had. The horses, though tired and hungry, had to go without anything to eat.

"He went to the house, no one was there. He thought we were at Mother's, so did not look for us as it was so late. I have often wondered if he remembered what I had said to him about a fire before he left.

"The next morning he came after us. We told him of our narrow escape. As we started home that morning we could see the cabin that we called home, dreary in its loneliness. But as luck would have it the men had killed several buffaloes on their hunt, so we had plenty of meat to eat that winter.

"About this time a neighbor, G. B. Nettleton, asked my husband to take a load for him up the river about one hundred miles, where he was moving. He had a homestead at Driftwood Creek, south of where McCook now stands. My husband went, and decided he would rather live there than where we were, so he filed on some land. This was the fall of 1872. My parents relocated also.

"The next spring we had fifteen acres of ground to plow, but no hay to feed the horses while they were working. We wanted to break up more ground but had to go slow with the horses on account of no food for them except green grass, and it was very late in growing. Our house was nearly surrounded by water. The Republican River was on one side and Methodist Creek on the other, forming a peninsula. There was just one way for us to get out, for there were no bridges.

"One day we heard that there was a waterspout up the river from us. We were worried and uneasy about it because of our location. The river was rising rapidly. The clouds looked threatening, and we could hear a rumbling and rushing, a crashing and the shaking of the ground, as if an earthquake was taking place. It was about three o'clock in the afternoon.

"It just sprinkled where we were, but by dark the creek was bank full. High water was coming down the river and the creek both. Soon water was running through our yard. We wondered what to do. We thought we were going to be washed away. There was a sea of water all around us.

"My husband ran and hitched the horses to the wagon and we started to drive out. It was very dark and the only time we could see anything was when lightning would flash. The wagon was hub deep in water. We could not tell where the road was or the river or the creek. The horses got off the road and fell into a hole. The babies were crying and so was I. We wondered where we were - whether we were on the bank of the river or the creek or where. My husband jumped out and cut the tugs loose with his knife to release the horses. Then he led them to higher ground, pausing for lightning to flash so he could see where he was going.

"I stayed in the wagon with my two babies till he returned to get us. While we were waiting, we could hear the water rolling and rushing all around us and expected every minute to be washed away. My husband had noticed a place near that was not covered with water and he took us to this dry spot where we stayed till morning. We would set sticks up at the edge of the water to see if it was rising or going down. The long hours dragged slowly by.

"At dawn we looked around to see how close we had come to driving into the river. If we had gone any farther we would have been drowned. As soon as it was light enough we drove to Father's house and ate breakfast with the folks. After breakfast we went home. Then we discovered that we would have been all right if we had stayed in the house.

"This storm came the middle of June and on the 29th of the same month, our third child was born. It was a little girl. We named her Mary.

"After the flood we were dissatisfied with our new home and wanted to locate on higher ground. So we decided to sell our interest in the claim if we could get $600.00 for it. We then would move on the land that my husband had filed on in the western part of the state. In 1873 the State Legislature designated the land lying in Townships 1, 2, 3 and 4 North, Ranges 27, 28, 29 and 30 West as Red Willow County. This was where our new claim was located and we were glad the county had been named.

"It was July now, 1873. The corn and all the crops were nice and green. We had a good garden and everything was just going fine. We wrote to our folks in the east of what wonderful country this was and asked them to move here with us. Of course we were in constant fear of Indians and often heard that they were killing white people every chance they had, but we had hopes of escaping them and were feeling fine to think we had such good crops and were getting along so well.

"One nice day I was out walking in the yard and admiring the beautiful country and feeling thankful that we had moved west and had a home of our own. My baby was only two or three weeks old and I was not very strong but glad I could enjoy the sunshine.

"I noticed a dark cloud rising in the west which looked peculiar. My first thought was the Indians were coming and I called to my husband, 'Come quick, the Indians are coming. See that smoke, they have set the prairie on fire.' I knew there was no one living on that divide.

"My husband came running and said, 'No, that's not a prairie fire. The grass is too green to burn.' I suddenly became very weak and leaned against the building to keep from falling.

"'What can it be?' I asked.

"'Perhaps it is a storm.'

"We watched the cloud and it seemed to rise higher and higher. The air was calm where we were and it did not seem like a storm coming. We were both saying, 'What can it be?'

"We found out very soon. Oh, if I could only forget it! As the cloud came over us, grasshoppers began to fall. The ground became covered with them, several inches deep. The corn and all crops soon disappeared like dew before the morning sun. By night there was not a green thing in sight. They cleaned up everything they could eat. We went in the house and sat down and wondered what we would do, how we could live and what we would feed our horses and cattle till we could raise another crop. My husband said he would have to go somewhere to get work so that we would have something to live on.

"While my husband was gone a man came wanting to buy the farm. I told him we wanted $700.00 for it. He said he would take it, so as soon as my husband returned the man came to talk about it. He said he wanted the farm but did not have any money. He said he would give us a large span of gray horses and a new wagon as a down payment. Later he sold us some cattle and gave us a mortgage for $200.00 on the cattle and horses he had left. We were now getting ready to move on our claim in Red Willow County.

"There was a preacher in the neighborhood holding meetings. We had prophets in those days, the same as now. This one had been holding meetings in a dugout located on a side hill. It had a sod front with two windows and a door on the south side. These were the only openings in the building.

"Preachers, in those days, preached about the 'wrath of God' and everlasting punishment instead of the love of Christ.

"This preacher's hobby was the 'Second Coming of Christ.' This was the subject he always talked on and he was very emphatic. He impressed upon the minds of his audience the importance of being prepared for the Second Coming. He told them how the sinful would be put in the fiery furnace and burned forever; how the Lord would come in a cloud and destroy the earth and all the sinners. He told them that the Second Coming would be in two years.

"Many believed, and the people who were converted thought it best to keep him in the neighborhood so they would all be prepared for the great event.

"As the date drew nearer, the people were more enthusiastic. This was their only subject whenever two or more were gathered together. They tried to persuade every person to their belief.

"As the time approached they decided to have an all-day session so that all might repent of their sins. The day was set in June on Saturday. They all gathered at the place of worship, early in the morning. They took a light lunch with them for they figured this would be all they would ever need. They came from every direction - in wagons, on horseback and afoot.

"Elder Brown, the minister and prophet, came very early on his plow horse. He tied it to some brush nearby. He figured she would never need anything more to eat since the world was to come to an end that day. The prayer meeting began very early in the morning, with Reverend Brown doing most of the talking. He prayed for the Lord to have mercy upon the sinner. Many testified and told of their wrongdoings and told of all the sins they had committed. They prayed long and earnestly. At noon they stopped long enough to eat their lunches and then went on with their prayers. They sang good old songs such as 'Rock of Ages' and 'Jesus, Lover of My Soul'. You could hear them for a mile away. They did not have any musical instrument in the church at that time.

"As time went on, the carrying on grew louder and louder. Some were praying, others shouting for the Lord to come. Some of the women fainted, others cried. Then there was an awful crash and a cloud of dust filled the room. Women screamed and moaned and children cried; the men shouted and ran for the door. Some of the men ran for half a mile before stopping.

"There in the middle of the floor lay Reverend Brown's horse. She had become hungry and slipped out of her bridle and walked on top of the dugout to get some green grass, and had fallen through the roof onto the floor. At first there was silence, then they decided they had better go home. Slowly they filed out to see the sun set and rise again - much to their surprise.

"One day fourteen Indian squaws and children came to our house asking for food. Their grief was heart rending as they cried and mumbled to themselves. We could not understand them, only we knew they wanted food and that they were on their way back to Genoa, a town on the Loop River.

"Later we learned that the Pawnees were hunting buffaloes in the country now known as Hitchcock County, on the little stream northwest of the town now known as Trenton. There were 300 warriors, 400 women and children, 1,200 ponies and a great many dogs.

"They had been warned by the white people that they were being watched by Sioux warriors, but Sky Chief, the leader of the Pawnees, thought this was a scheme to get the buffaloes, so did not pay any attention to the warning. On August 3, 1873, the Pawnees rode out to meet a herd of buffaloes coming from the northwest, but to their surprise the buffalo robes were thrown off and they were confronted by the Sioux. The Pawnees turned, gathered their women and children, pack ponies and dogs into a ravine for protection. The hill was covered with fighting Indians as the Sioux seemed to come from every direction.

"Mr. Williamson, a white man who was sent out by the Government to go with the Pawnees to keep peace, rode out in front with a white cloth on a long pole. A stream of bullets and arrows came at him, so he turned and started back. A bullet hit his horse, and it stumbled and fell dead at the edge of the ravine. Mr. Williamson fell into the ravine and was saved.

"Sky Chief had ridden off in pursuit of a buffalo just before the fight started. The Sioux found him first and killed and scalped him. The air was full of arrows and bullets. An awful encounter followed. On every side the Pawnees were driven back. They gave the alarm for the women to flee for their lives. Some, however, crawled into holes and under the brush. Those that did not run were all killed and scalped. For three miles the Sioux warriors followed them. The Pawnees were driven in a tangled mass down the massacre canyon. As the ravine narrowed it became a gorge and many were trampled. All the time the Sioux were on the top of the hill firing down upon them.

"They would all have been killed if it had not been for the U. S. Cavalry coming up the Republican River at the time. The Sioux being on top of the hill saw them first and recognized them by their flag. This caused them to turn and flee and as they went they took with them several of the pack ponies belonging to the Pawnees.

"The Sioux killed 156 of the Pawnees, and most of their ponies and equipment were lost. To this day I can see those squaws with their babies in their arms, crying for their lost husbands.

"On account of my poor health I hated to move so far from Mother. And the claim that my husband had filed on in Red Willow County was on the south side of the river. There were no bridges and you never knew when there would be a flood, and fording the river was a dangerous thing on account of the quicksand shifting. I dreaded to think of moving to this farm.

"August came and we were to move. My husband loaded up our goods and started. The children and I were to stay with Father and Mother till he came back. I told him before he left that I hoped and prayed that the river would be so high when he arrived there he could not cross.

"When he arrived at the river it was very high and out of its banks in many places. He stayed there five days waiting for the water to go down so he could cross. While there a man came along and told him about a nice quarter of land on Red Willow Creek, with plenty of wood and water. My husband went at once to look at it and he was well pleased. He thought it a much better place than the one he had. He broke out five acres of sod, then fixed a dugout to live in. He did not have time to put a roof on but put his goods in it and came back after the family. I had not heard a word from him since he left, for there was no way in which he could send us a letter or a message of any kind.

"I was so glad when he came back and told me what he had done. Mother said she would keep our little boy until we were settled and then they would bring him to us. We loaded up the rest of our goods and started. We were on the road three days.

"Just at sunset the third day we came in sight of the timber on Red Willow Creek. Across the creek were five wagons. We found out later that they had just buried a child who had died with whooping cough. This made me feel uneasy. I wondered what we would do if our children got sick, and if there was any doctor close by.

"As we neared our new home it seemed to me that we were going to the end of the world - in other words, to the jumping-off place. The baby was very cross; she had been fussing and crying all the way out there. When we arrived at the dugout it was dark. Mosquitoes were singing and biting till it seemed they would eat us up. I was so homesick I thought I never could stand it. Oh, if only I had wings to fly, I would not stay here a minute. But we were like all other settlers; we were there and could not get away.

"The night passed and the next day my husband put a roof on the dugout and made a door for it. There were no windows and just a dirt floor. We lived in this dugout for six weeks. During that time my folks came with the little boy. He could not walk very well alone, being only about a year old. I would let him play just outside the door in the sunshine, and one day I heard him cry and ran to see what was the matter. There he sat in a bed of big red ants. He was covered with them. They were stinging and biting and crawling all over him. I picked him up as soon as I could, took all his clothes off, brushed the ants off and took a wire hairpin and dug them out of his ears and nose. He had bites all over him and was crying as hard as he could.

"I realized that something must be done quick. There was no doctor to get and it was too far to any neighbors. It was up to me to save our boy. I did not know what else to do so I painted him all over with indigo. This was what we used to blue our clothes with. This I hoped would kill the poison. His eyes were soon swollen shut. I could tell by the way he cried that his throat was swelling, too. I worked and worked with him for three days. Then he began to get better and in a few days was all right.

"In the Fall of 1872 the government of Nebraska had the western part of the state surveyed. The counties named were Red Willow, Phelps, Furnace and Hitchcock.

"Thirty-two families passed the winter of 1873-74 in Red Willow County. D. N. Smith, agent for the Republican Valley Land Association, erected the first building in Indianola. He presented it to the county and it served as a courthouse, post office, schoolhouse and church, also a law office. The benches were made of cottonwood slabs and it was lighted with candles. This was the western frontier, with only buffaloes and Indians beyond.

"The Indians were frequent visitors and to prevent them from becoming hostile we would give them something to eat, even though we did not have much for our families. Many a stagecoach and emigrant train were attacked and some people were killed.

"One of the pioneers started to a little town twenty-five miles away, leaving his wife and little boy in their sod house till he could get home. He drove a team of oxen and did not arrive in the village until late in the afternoon. They told him that the Indians were coming. He turned around and started for home as fast as the oxen could go. In the meantime a hunter had stopped and told the man's wife that a report had come that the Indians were coming. This frightened her very much. She took her little boy in her arms and started for the nearest neighbor who lived two miles away. When she arrived there they were not at home. She was tired and did not know what to do, so she went back home.

"She met several Indians on her way back but they did not harm her. She noticed, in particular, that the squaws were carrying all they could handle. When she arrived home she found the meat barrel was empty. Before she had time to lock the door, four big Indians walked in. They were all carrying tomahawks, had on their head-dresses and were painted in bright colors. They looked around the room as if in search of something. When they discovered several sacks of flour the leader started to take a sack. This gave the woman courage. She snatched a rifle from the wall and aimed it at him. The Indian who stood beside her raised his tomahawk to strike her, then changed his mind and turned around and walked out. The others followed. She quickly shut the door behind him and bolted it fast. Then she watched through a crack in the wall and saw the Indians go away. She was so weak she just trembled. Her husband hurried as fast as the tired oxen could go, but did not get home till night.

"We had to go about one hundred miles for provisions. It was a place called Plum Creek, now named Lexington, on the Platte River. It took days to make the round trip with a team. Neighbors would take turns going. One man would haul for all the rest, and in this way the women and children were not left alone in the neighborhood. They were all afraid of Indians.

"My husband and a neighbor thought they might make a little money on some horses, so they bought sixty head of ponies and drove them east to sell. My brother Jacob was staying with me while Mr. Canaga was gone. We kept our fishhooks set all the time in Red Willow Creek. This was the way we derived most of our meat. One day while my brother was out looking at the fishhooks, a neighbor rode up and said, 'Mrs. Canaga, be ready in fifteen minutes, there will be a team here to get you. Indians are coming and we are all to go to Indianola.' He rode on to tell the rest of the neighbors.

"As soon as he left I ran to the pig pen to turn the hogs out. Then I ran to where the cows were lariated out, and turned them loose. I was calling all the time to my brother to come quickly, that Indians were coming.

"When I arrived at the house, my brother was there. I told him we must hurry, that a team would soon be there for us. I washed the children's faces and put clean clothes on them, then gathered up some of their clothes in a sheet and tied the corners together. We didn't have any suitcases. I put some bread and butter in the bundle, and we were ready when the wagon came. Other neighbors were in the wagon, as many as it would hold.

"When we arrived at Indianola people were there for miles around. The menfolk brought all the ammunition and guns they could find. They hurriedly formed a circle on the outside with wagons. Then a circle with the horses. Then the men hid behind the horses. The women and children were all kept inside the only house. We stayed there like that all night, the men keeping watch and the women taking care of the children. We were expecting to be attacked by Indians any minute. We were so frightened - I will never forget how we felt and what a long night we put in.

"The next day a cowboy said, 'If you will furnish me a horse, I will ride up the river and see how close they are.' They gave him a young mare to ride and he left at twelve o'clock. We waited and watched, and waited and watched, till about five o'clock. Then we saw the young mare coming back with a piece of paper tied around her neck. We hastened to her. It read, 'What you have taken for Indians is a herd of Texas cattle.' What a relief!

"We all took a long breath and cried for joy.

"One neighbor said, 'I guess we better go home.' Others said, 'Not till morning.' I told my neighbor if he was going home I would like to ride with him.

"'Ellen,' Brother said, 'if you go back now you will have to go alone.' I thought of our cows and pigs; they were all we had to depend upon for a living. 'I'll go alone then,' and I did. When I arrived home everything was all right. The Indians had not been there. I shut the cows in the corral and fed the pigs and everything was fine.

"My neighbors came over and took me home with them. I was glad they came after me, for I was afraid to stay alone after such a scare. They lived in a sod house that was ten feet wide and twelve feet long. They had two beds, a stove, a table and a few chairs. They did not have room for us but said they would make room for us at a time like this.

"They fixed a bed on the floor for the children, who were so tired they were glad to get to lie down anywhere and went right to sleep.

"About mignight I woke up. Something seemed to be crawling all over me and biting me. I looked and it was fleas. I decided I would get up and walk around out in the yard, for I could not sleep any longer. The fleas were eating me up alive.

"It was a beautiful moonlight night. I could hear the hoot owl calling his mate and the mournful sound of a dove. I sat down on a bench that was there in front of the house. I sat there for a long time. Memories of my old home came back to me and I wondered if we had bettered ourselves any by coming out west. Suddenly I heard a rattling in the brush close by. This frightened me. I rushed back in the house and as I entered the neighbor raised up in bed and said something that I could not understand. Then I heard his wife say, 'Don't shoot, it's Mrs. Canaga.' He had his gun in his hand and was ready to fire. 'I thought it was an Indian,' he said.

"The next morning I went home and my brother soon came. He told me how the rest of the neighbors stayed at Indianola all night. They were afraid to go home.

"My husband was away two weeks, and it seemed like ages to me. He brought back thirty ponies he could not sell. The rest of them he had sold on time and had taken notes for pay, as the buyers had no cash. He said times were dull and money was scarce in the east. Mr. Canaga never was able to cash the notes and we lost all.

"There were very few people living in Red Willow County at this time and those who did live there were many miles apart. Each and every man took it upon himself to protect his neighbor as well as his own family, especially when he knew the menfolk were gone.

"One day Mr. Stenner thought he would ride over to a neighbor's house and see how they were getting along. He mounted his horse and rode away. His wife was looking out the window watching him ride up the hill where he met two Indians who were on horseback, too. They shook hands with him and seemed glad to see him. The wife and daughters, who were in the house, were so frightened they did not know what to do, but thought they were civilized Indians or they would not have been so friendly.

"Nevertheless they stayed by the window, watching. Presently Mr. Stenner started on and just as he turned his back on them they shot and killed him. Before the women could do a thing the Indians were in the house. They tied Mrs. Stenner and bound her to the post that was in the center of the room. They took the girls by the hair, for they had beautiful long hair, and drug them all around the room in front of their mother, beating and whipping them with their horsewhips till the girls' screams could be heard for miles. The floor and walls were covered with blood. This caused the mother to swoon into unconsciousness. When the Indians thought they were all dead they left and rode away.

"Two days passed by and the neighbors, not seeing anything of the Stenner family, thought it best to look about them. As they neared the house, they found the body of Mr. Stenner, mangled almost beyond recognition by wolves. They knew then that Indians had been there, and they rushed into the house. The mother was still tied to the post, but did not recognize them. The girls were lying on the floor, where the Indians had left them, still unconscious. The neighbors took the women home with them and gave them nourishment and medicine such as they had, for there was no doctor they could get. In a short time Mrs. Stenner and the girls regained consciousness and were able to tell what had happened.

"When this story became known among the settlers it caused much uneasiness. Before this when an Indian seemed so sociable he was considered civilized and was not suspected of any harm. Now the white people were afraid of every Indian they saw.

"There were several children in the neighborhood who were old enough to go to school but there was no school for them to attend. The parents were all anxious for their children to have a good education, so they called a meeting of all who had children five years of age or more to decide what to do. They voted to hire a teacher by subscription. Each family was to pay so much per child on the teacher's salary, and those who could not pay, could board the teacher part time and that would go on the teacher's salary. The school was to be held first in one home and then another since there was no schoolhouse. George McCoy was the first teacher and received $12.50 a month part of the time and occasionally as high as $15.00, depending upon the number of children in school. His board was taken out of this. We had three months of school in a year.

"On December 17, 1873, School District Number One was organized at Red Willow. They didn't have money to build a schoolhouse so they decided to hold school in a building that John Lawton had built of logs on his homestead, and then deserted. It was a cabin with two windows and a door on the south side and a fireplace on the east end. It was considered a safe place for the children because it had what was called an Indian cave connected with the house on the north side. This was a cave dug back of the house with a small tunnel leading to the house. If Indians came, the children and teacher could crawl through this tunnel to the cave and the Indians would not find them. If the Indians set the house on fire, the teacher could close the opening and the smoke would not get to them, and the Indians would not know they were there. This house was used for a schoolhouse until 1885. Then a frame building was erected across the road, where the new building now stands. Ada Buck was the first teacher in the frame building.

"On Arbor Day, 1886, while Ada Buck was the teacher, trees were planted around the school in a celebration in which my children participated. Each tree was named by the child who planted it and was given the name of the child's favorite author.

"We did not raise much in 1874 on account of dry weather and grasshoppers. We met with many hardships and discouragements. Many of the pioneers grew restless and left their homesteads, and moved back east to the place from which they came. Money was hard to get. This is recorded in history as 'a money panic' which affected the whole world. Being one hundred miles from a railroad town we had no market for the things we did raise. Eggs were worth five cents a dozen when we could sell them; butter, eight cents a pound; cattle and hogs, two cents a pound; corn, eight cents a bushel; and wheat, forty cents. We had to live on cornbread and sorghum, wild game and fish.

"Rocky Mountain grasshoppers were one of the worst things we had to contend with. They had long slender bodies and sometimes grew to be very large. They were different to the grasshoppers we have now. They traveled in swarms and would fly for miles before stopping. It was a sad day for the farmer when they settled down on his crops. On July 20, 21 and 22, 1874, great clouds of them settled down upon us. There were so many that they darkened the sky. The vibration of their wings filled the air with a humming sound; it sounded like an awful storm coming. Then a hush would fall as they dropped to the ground and began to eat. They soon ate all the green crops except broom corn and sorghum. They ate the bark off the trees and gnawed holes in the rail fences. They were so thick on the ground that the earth looked as though it was moving. It was hard to drive a team across a field because the hoppers would fly up and strike the horses on the head like hailstones.

"We thought when they had eaten up all the crops they would fly away again, but instead they crawled into the ground and laid their eggs there and then died. We had hard times before the hoppers came, but now starvation was staring us in the face. There was no hope left, for the ground was filled with eggs that would hatch in the spring.

"These were the darkest days Nebraska had ever known. On September 8, the government issued a proclamation requesting relief for those who had suffered from the grasshoppers and drouth. Some were too proud to accept it. Others hunted game and lived as the Indians lived on 'jerky', dried buffalo meat. Others gave up their homesteads and moved back east. Often we would see a covered wagon going east with one horse and one cow hitched up, pulling the wagon.

"Thus the years went by, and on the 21st of June, 1875, our fourth child was born. We called her Ida. We had to get along as best we could when there was sickness in the family for there was not a doctor in the country. Ida was the third white child born in Red Willow County.

"One day I was trying to sew a little. I was making a pair of pants for my husband. My little girl was cross and fretful. She was about two years old. I did not have any toys, so I went outdoors to see if I could find something that she could play with. Early in the spring I had planted some seed that I thought were flower seeds. (They turned out to be Jimson weed.)

"I picked some of the dry pods from the plants and shook them. They rattled, so I thought they would make a nice rattle box for her to play with. She played with them and was quiet for a while, then she came to me crying harder than ever. I spoke up very crossly and said, 'Go away, Crosspatch, till I finish these pants.'

"She turned to go and I noticed she staggered as she went. I threw the pants down and said, 'Mary, come to Mama.' She turned and looked at me with a wild expression in her eyes. As I picked her up she grabbed my hair with both hands, as if she was afraid of falling. Just then my husband came in with a load of wood.

"'Something is wrong with our little girl,' I said.

"He came up close and reached his arms out to take her. She grabbed with both hands for his whiskers.

"'I'm afraid she is poisoned,' and I spoke of the Jimson pods (Jamestown Weed) I had given her to play with.

"I gave her all the sweet cream she would drink, then I gave her butter and sugar. She lay in spasms all night. We sent for a man who pretended to know something about medicine. He stayed with us till morning. We finally got her to vomit and she threw up about a thimbleful of the Jimson seed. Then she began to get better, but it was two weeks before she could walk again.

"While she was sick I was lying on the bed with her and reading a Sunday School paper. I read in that paper about a tramp who was traveling along the dusty road one day and walked out into the cemetery. He threw himself down beside a tombstone to cool off and went to sleep. When he woke up, he sat up and read this verse on the tombstone:

"Remember well when passing by,
As you are now, so once was I.
As I am, so you will be;
Prepare in life to follow me.

"The tramp took a pencil from his pocket and wrote this beneath the verse:

"With your advice, I'm not content
Until I know which way you went.

"I jumped up and got the verse I had prized so highly and burned it up. Then I said to myself, 'I don't want that verse on my tombstone.'

"At first we did not have much social life, but as more people moved in we began to have prayer meetings in the homes. We organized literaries and met in the schoolhouse. We had a program consisting of readings and songs, and violin and mouth organ music. There were no other musical instruments. We debated and had spell-downs and basket suppers at the close of the entertainment. We would go miles in a wagon to these entertainments. We would put some hay in the wagon box then spread a quilt over the hay. We did not have even a wagon seat to sit on. Sometimes several neighbors would go in one wagon.

"Children found work herding cattle and picking up bones. Buffalo and cattle bones brought $1.50 a load. Children would pick up these bones and stack them and when they thought they had a load the men would take them to market.

"One nice warm day the children wanted to know if they could go out where their father was plowing and follow in the furrow behind him. I told them they could if they would be on the watch-out for snakes. They said they would. While they were out I thought I would get some sewing done. I sat down in a chair to do some basting.

"Mary came running in and said, 'Mammie, see what I have,' and before I could say a word she poured a can of fishworms in my lap. I screamed and jumped and threw the worms all over the room. They began to crawl in every direction. I had quite a time cleaning them out.

"There were many snakes all over the country. Rattlesnakes and copperheads were the only ones that people were afraid of. These were considered very poisonous. The homesteaders kept whiskey or alcohol on hand to give in case a person was bitten. This was the only thing they knew to do. The children went barefooted as long as the weather would permit, to save on shoes. There were no pasture fences; it was free range, and children had to herd the cattle barefooted. They were on constant watch for snakes but sometimes the smaller children would forget.

"Russell Loomis' little boy was following along behind his older brother. His brother ran over the snake and did not see it and when the little boy came along the rattlesnake bit him. They were two or three miles from home and by the time they arrived home the poison had gone through his system till they could not do a thing for him and he died. This frightened the homesteaders more than ever. Many times cattle were bitten by these snakes. Their bodies would swell up and in a day or two they would die. When a dog was bitten he would run for water and if he could find some mud and water he would crawl into it and stay there till he got better.

"Rattlesnakes and burrowing owls lived in the same burrows with prairie dogs. Sometimes their towns would cover several acres of ground, and, of course, they had the space all to themselves, because everything was afraid of rattlesnakes. One of these prairie dog towns was only about 600 feet from our house. We did not molest them. They were hard to catch or kill.

"Wild cattle annoyed the pioneers a great deal. Since there were no fences to protect crops they would come in at night to graze. And if there had been a drouth and it was hard for them to find something to eat they would come in large herds.

"One cold winter night our dog began barking viciously. We knew by the way he barked that there were wild animals around. My husband jumped up, grabbed his gun and ran out. He said as he went that there was a herd of wild cattle in the hay lot. I was frightened for I thought of their long horns and worried that they might gore him to death. I was afraid to go out.

"I heard the dog barking and my husband yelling as loud as he could. I knew he was trying to scare them away. They were so poor and wobbly they couldn't run. He picked up a club and beat them on the head and some of them he knocked down, they were so weak. With the dog's help he finally drove them out. The barn was a dugout and the roof was on a level with the ground, covered with willow and straw. He was afraid they would get on it and fall in on the horses and kill them, but they didn't. We had to drive them away many times during the winter.

"The buffaloes were not so bold. They had what were called buffalo wallows where they would sleep at night. These wallows would be several feet across, and when it rained they would fill up with water and look like small lakes. The buffaloes had fords in the rivers where the water was shallow. They would come here in herds to get a drink and sometimes would wade across to feed on the other side. One of the fords was on our claim. I often watched them come down for water. At first buffaloes and antelopes were plentiful. Later on it became the custom to go on a hunt for the winter's supply of meat and for some to sell. Many pioneers supported their families in this way. They sold or traded jerky for supplies. It was not a question of getting ahead or making money, but being able to merely exist.

"My brother, John Crockford, moved to Montana. Here is a copy of a letter he wrote to his brother, Henry in Michigan:

Jefferson River, Montana
September 16, 1881

Dear Brother and Sister:

I am propped up in bed, and take my pen in hand to drop you a few lines. Julia and baby are well. I am not. I was tackled night before last by a big grizzly bear, and was torn up very badly. I am crippled in the left thigh, my leg being nearly torn off. My face is torn, also one hand. I tackled the bear first. I was hunting grizzlies and tracked one into a thicket, when all at once he rose up on his haunches right before me, about ten feet away. Sat there and looked at me, but did not offer to hurt me till I shot him. Before I had time to think he had me in his paws and smashed me onto the ground. I had an awful fight with him. He was larger than an ox. I struck him on the mouth with the gun, and broke his two large teeth out. That was what saved me. He kept getting weaker and weaker from the shot I had given him. I finally tore away from him and crawled into the river and he did not follow. I was two miles from my wagon. I had an awful time to get back. There are two men going out to get the bear tomorrow if they can find the place. I know I killed him, or I would never have got away. I was no more in his paws than a mouse is in a cat's, at first. But he got so weak he reeled when he was on top of me.

Oh, Henry, what a place I was in. I prayed and fought awful hard. I am in such pain. I can't tell you where to write, for I don't know. I am on the road to Yellowstone River to hunt buffaloes, but I guess that is about played out now. I am not able to travel. My left thigh is the worst, torn almost off. I may be a cripple for life.

If you will direct to Butte City, Montana Territory, I will get it. I will send there for my mail. I will close now. Goodbye.

John Crockford

"The men found the dead bear later. John subsequently died from the injuries he received.

"On June 15, 1877, the government under military command by Major Howard took the Ponca Indians across Nebraska to the Indian Territory. The pioneers were feeling better because the government was taking the Indians away.

"Farmers also had begun to realize that if they stayed they must find some way to destroy the grasshoppers. They rigged up nets to catch them in. Some dug ditches and filled them with poison bait and destroyed them while feeding. That spring was late and we had a hard freeze after the grasshoppers' eggs hatched and they were destroyed in that way.

"Crops were getting better and many people were moving in. Quite a little town was growing up in Indianola. Although there was no railroad we could get some of the necessary things of life there.

"There was a rumor that the Burlington Railroad was going to build through the State to Denver, and that the tracks would follow the Republican River. This enthused the pioneers more than anything else.

"In the year 1878 was our last Indian scare. A man came riding a horse and notified the people that Indians were coming. He said that there was a whole tribe of them coming and for every person to go to the Overacher home for defense. Men, women and children were quickly notified to gather there. They came from miles away.

"The Overacher house was built of sod on a side hill and had a dugout basement. This made a good place for the women and children. The men quickly arranged the wagons around the horses and then stood behind them for protection. The women gathered butcher knives and hatchets and prepared themselves in case the Indians would break through the line of defense outside. This caused intense excitement. Some of the women were crying, others moaning and fainting.

"Someone gave the alarm that they were there. Our hearts seemed to stop beating. We waited and waited, afraid to even breathe for fear they would hear us. But they didn't come. Then my brother said he would get on a horse and ride to the top of the hill. Maybe the Indians had passed by. He rode, then reported that there were no Indians. How we rejoiced.

"A doctor by the name of DeNeer located in the little village of Red Willow. He was a welcome man in the neighborhood. We had done without a doctor for so many years.

"That summer an epidemic of diphtheria broke out in the neighborhood. Every person who contracted the disease died. Many families lost all their children. Two of our children, Mary and Ida, caught it, as all the well children were allowed to go to the funerals of their playmates. We sent for Dr. DeNeer. When he arrived he said there was no hope for Ida but he would do what he could.

"He made a funnel with a piece of writing paper and through that he blew sulphur into the children's throats; then he instructed me how to keep up that treatment, and they recovered.

"The Burlington Railroad built through to Denver in 1882. It came through Indianola in 1879. A spot about ten miles west of Red Willow was designated as a division station. They built a roundhouse there and named it McCook.

"Among the early settlers of Red Willow County were two women whose names should go down in history for their part in making Nebraskans better citizens. They were Mrs. John Longnecker and Mrs. Royal Buck. They were the first ladies to settle in this barren wilderness, and brave they must have been to come so far from their homes and loved ones to settle among the Indians and buffaloes.

"Mrs. John Longnecker was well educated, refined and cultured. She came from Kentucky with her husband soon after they were married. They brought with them a good library, which was of much value to the neighborhood as there were no schools or churches for some time. She was a great worker among the young folks. Although she had six children of her own, she always found time to help with the amusement and entertainment of the others. She helped to organize the church and taught the young folks' class for many, many years. Quite often she would take all of them home with her for dinner, and after dinner she would see to it that they were properly entertained. She would loan them some good books to read and encourage them to fit themselves for higher and better work. She trained them for leadership. Her influence and teachings will live long in the hearts and lives of those who came in contact with her. She now lies at rest in the little cemetery on the hill at Indianola.

"Mrs. Buck was a homebody, but nevertheless did much to improve the life of every family in the neighborhood. She was kind and lovable, well educated and refined. She raised four children.

"On cold days she would watch for children going to and from school and if it was cold weather she would call them in to get warm. Often she would give them a warm drink, a piece of pie or a piece of cake, to cheer them up, then wrap them up good before they started on. She would encourage them to study hard and grow up to be good men and women. If she thought they were not properly clothed she would call on their mothers and advise them as to their care and dress. She helped me a great many times in the bringing up of my children. She will live long in the hearts of every mother and child that she knew.

"One bitter cold morning the neighborhood was shocked to hear of the death of Ella Buck. The Bucks' oldest daughter had a pet horse that Ella had been riding to Red Willow post office every day. The post office was about two miles away and she always went about ten o'clock in the morning. It was the style in those days for a woman to ride on a side saddle, with both feet on one side of the horse, and to wear a long skirt that nearly touched the ground.

"This particular morning it was ten degrees below zero and the ground was frozen very hard. There was a light snow on the ground and in patches. The horse came home without her. Mr. Buck jumped on the horse and started back to find her. He had not gone very far when he found Ella lying on the side of the road with her neck broken. She gasped once and was gone. He saw a paper in the grass nearby which made him think that the horse had become frightened at this paper and had jumped sidewise, tossing her off. The mother was overcome with grief when she found out what had happened. It was a sad funeral, for everyone in the neighborhood mourned the loss of this young lady.

"On January 12, 1882, our fifth and last child was born. We named her Nellie. It was a bitter cold night, snowing hard and the wind had drifted the snow many feet deep in places. A neighbor rode on horseback seven miles to get the doctor, Dr. Shaw, who lived in Indianola. He drove a team and buggy through the deep snow and many times would have to get out and shovel his way through. He was almost frozen when he arrived. We had him stay till morning and wait for the storm to abate.

"The news came on June 8, 1882, that the first successful telephone connection between Lincoln and Omaha was accomplished. Many people said it could not be true that the voice could be carried over a wire.

"After our frame schoolhouse was built we had nine months of school a year. There were no pencil tablets at that time but the teacher was able to get foolscap paper and she gave each pupil one sheet with instructions to be careful how they used it, as there was only one sheet for each pupil. She gave one lead pencil to each; it consisted of unpainted wood and had no rubber on the tip. There was one eraser in the school for all the children. Pupils used slates to work their problems on.

"The blizzard of January 12, 1888, will long be remembered by all early settlers as the worst recorded in history. It had been warm and calm all day till about three in the afternoon. The wind came from the north and the clouds began to hover. The wind blew harder and harder, the clouds became more dense, snow began to fall. As the wind increased it grew colder. A teacher in the west part of the state, fearing a bad storm, dismissed school and told the children to hurry home. By the time the children arrived home it was getting bitter cold and the wind was fairly howling. The wind and snow raged for three days and nights. Men could not get to their barns to feed their stock. All houses, barns and sheds that were dugouts, were completely covered with snow.

"The storm was soon followed by another one. We were snowed in for two weeks before we could hear from our neighbors. We had one neighbor by the name of Brown who lived in a dugout, and if it had not been for another neighbor, a Mr. Long, the Browns would have all perished. Mr. Long lived close and fearing that they were covered up with snow, succeeded in getting there after three days of shoveling drifts. Their doorway was completely covered. He shoveled snow for hours to get them out. When he got them they were all right but glad to be released.

"In the western part of Nebraska was the sand hill region. That was the last part of the state to be settled up. It was not considered of much value and a dangerous place to live. There was a family living there by the name of Haumann. It was a large family - nine to ten children. The oldest girl was working for a neighbor. She was in the habit of going home on Sunday, but this particular Sunday she could not go home. Two of her sisters, eight and four years of age, went over to see her. On their way home they stopped to pick some flowers and soon were lost. That night they did not return home so the next morning their parents went to look for them. It was soon learned that they were lost. People came from far and near to search for the little girls. Sometimes they would find footprints in the sand, and would think they were close. But they hunted and hunted till Wednesday noon, when they found the youngest child.

"She was carrying one shoe in her hand, the other one she had lost. She had gone so long without water or food and was so frightened that her mind was affected for days. It took months for her to recover. They did not find the other little girl till the seventh day. She had taken off her apron, spread it on the brush, and crawled under it and died. Her little form was wasted away so that her parents could recognize her only by her clothing. The neighbors wept with the family, as they tenderly laid her to rest near her home.

"The wells that the pioneers had dug to get water were very deep and it took a long time to dig them by hand. One man would be at the bottom of the well digging with a spade and there would be others at the top pulling the dirt up in a bucket with a rope and pulley. Sometimes it was a man pulling the dirt up and sometimes it was a woman. Just whoever they could get. When they had struck enough water to get along with they would quit digging, put a curb around the outside of the well, then build a frame up over it and place a pulley and rope in this and draw the water up in a bucket. It took a long time to pull the water up if the well was 200 or more feet deep; it was very hard work.

"When the settlers gave up their homesteads and moved back east during the hard times, these wells were left open. Grass and sunflowers grew up over them and the curbs rotted away and they were not visible. When the rains came the hole washed larger and left a very dangerous place. A man living in Custer County was driving along one evening and discovered he was not on the road. It was getting quite dark. He crawled out of his wagon to see if he could tell where he was. He walked around in front of the horses when all at once he realized that he was going down.

"He wondered what he could do, where he was and what had happened, thinking there was no hope for him. He put his hands together and offered up a prayer to Almighty God to have mercy on him. The farther he went the faster he went. He thought he would never stop. At last he realized he was in mud and water, four or five feet deep. He knew then he had fallen into an open well. He managed to get his head up out of the water, but was dazed and could not think what to do, if anything.

"At last he was able to get on some boards and trash that had fallen into the well and in this way kept pretty well out of the water till morning. It seemed like a long night.

He knew that there was no hope of anyone finding him. He thought of his knife. He took it out of his pocket and began to dig foot holds in the wall. This was slow work but it seemed his only chance to get out. He worked for two days and two nights. He was almost exhausted, still he kept digging. At last he reached the top. He fell on the ground and thanked the Lord that his life was spared. The well was 143 feet deep. He crawled to the nearest house, for he was too weak to walk and he had hurt one foot when he fell. The neighbors took him home and in time he recovered. A complaint was sent to the Legislature and a law was passed forbidding anyone to leave an open well.

"After the coming of the railroad the country improved rapidly. The county seat was moved from Indianola to McCook and a new courthouse was built. McCook grew very fast. A flour mill was erected there and many other improvements. Churches and schoolhouses were all over the county. The districts now all had nine months of school a year.

"More people were moving in every year. Crops were getting better. We were now able to get coal oil, and lamps were used in place of candles. A herd law was passed. Farmers were able to get barbed wire to fence their pastures. Spring wagons and buggies were taking the place of lumber wagons.

"We began to feel glad that we had come to the new country. We had our home and the children would have a chance to get a good education. These were the things we came west for.

"It's not all pleasure living in a country when it is new, but the tragedy of it all is the children who lose their lives.

"In the fall of 1887, the town of Elwood had just been started. Very few people lived in that part of the state because the county was so rough and it was very hard to get water. They had to dig their wells by hand with a spade and go down two hundred feet or more to strike water. This was very dangerous as the sides of the well would sometimes cave in on them while digging.

"E. D. Usher lived near what we called 'The Devil's Gap.' This is the top of the divide between the Platte River and the Republican River. The head of the canyon from the north comes very close to the head of the canyon from the south. There is a narrow strip of land between the two canyons which is very high and the canyons on either side are sixty feet deep or more. The land is quite level on top and breaks off abruptly into these deep gulches.

"At this particular time Mr. Usher had company visiting, a family named Nelson. They had a little boy six years old they called Jamie. They also had other small children with them. One day the Nelson and Usher children were out playing on some hay. In the canyon the menfolk came driving along in a wagon with some barrels in the back of the wagon. They were on their way to the William Umberger ranch to get some water. They did not have a well and were hauling water from their neighbor's place.

"Jamie ran out to the wagon. The other children saw him go, but thought he was tired of playing and wanted to go home with his dad, so paid no attention to him. When the children went home that night Mrs. Nelson said, 'Where is Jamie?' They told her he went with the men to get water. When the men came home, Jamie was not with them and they had not seen him. A light snow was beginning to fall. They must find him at once for it was getting dark. They hunted till it was so dark they could not see any longer. They lit their lanterns and called on the neighbors to help them find the lost child. They hunted all night - still no trace of him.

"The next morning when it had quit storming they found his tracks but could not follow them. They hunted that day and more people came. They came from far and near to hunt for the lost child. The second day they found his cap. They searched everywhere - in the canyons, on the divide, in the brush and in the grass, everywhere - but they could not find Jamie. The search went on night and day till everyone was worn out. The mother was frantic over the loss of her child.

"On the sixth day they found his little form, stiff and cold in death. He was lying in a little hole in the ground with his little legs crossed as if he were asleep. He was at the edge of Frontier County. As near as they could tell he had traveled about fourteen miles. It was a sad day when the parents returned to their home in Saline County carrying their little boy back there for burial.

"I moved to Lebanon, Oregon, in 1910. My four daughters live here. My husband and son, and most of the people spoken of in this book, are now resting underneath the soil on the plains of Western Kansas and Nebraska. My grandson, Walter L. Miles, is now flying over the trail that we blazed in a covered wagon many years ago.

"As I sit here alone in my modern home in Lebanon, at the age of eightyseven, I realize that I am nearing the end. The sun will soon be setting. I hope that I have not made these sacrifices in vain; that my children and the younger people of today will strive to make this a better world in which to live.

"Echoes come back to me of a home built on the barren prairies, of the hardships endured, and of the early friendships and the simple pleasures we enjoyed.

"The sublime faith of most of the early settlers was marvelous. They met discouragement and disaster with strong determination to succeed. Nothing could shake them from their goal, of conquering the wilderness and making it 'to blossom as a rose.'

"May the spirit of progress never die out. May the younger generations have that determination to succeed, let come what will. And may they learn to enjoy their work, as did the early settlers. The poet ... has said:

"The moving finger writes, and having writ,
moves on;
Nor all your piety, nor all your wit
Can alter one short line - nor all your tears
Blot out one word of it."

08-00731-02 WILLIAM EDGAR STEARNS[9] (John[8], John[7], Rhoda[6], Thomas[5], Timothy[4], Thomas[3], Samuel[2], Palmer[1]), of Starrucca, Pa., born May 23, 1846 at Preston, Pa.; died Nov. 22, 1871 at Starrucca, Pa., buried in Robert King plot in Stanton Hill Cemetery at Shehawken, Pa.; married Mar. 11, 1868 at , Ellen A., daughter of Robert and Minerva (Tallman) King, of Starrucca, Pa., born July 1, 1844 at Starrucca, Pa. (Preston Twp.); died Jan. 29, 1925 at Endicott, N. Y., buried beside her second husband in Riverview Cemetery at Endicott, N. Y. She married second in 1874, Henry Hill.

"William Edgar was known as 'Ed' or 'Edgar'. His mother died less than two months after his birth. His boyhood was spent in and around Preston Postoffice.

"On March 11, 1868, he married Ellen A. King, daughter of Robert and Minerva Tallman King. In 1867 he bought 2 acres from George Case, on which there was a house or on which he immediately built a house. He bought an adjoining 92 acres from George Dow in 1868. This farm was located up the dirt road from the old Starbird farm, between Preston Park and Tallmansville. It is listed on the old 1860 Wayne Co. map under the name of George Case. On the 1872 Wayne Co. Atlas it is shown under the name of Mrs. Ellen Stearns. It was here that his two children, John K. and Minnie, were born.

"There are but few known facts concerning the life of Edgar. All indications are that he was a lumberman. The 92 acres he bought from Dow were mostly virgin hemlock. This was the great era of the tannery in northeastern Pennsylvania and hemlock bark was in great demand. The buildings on this farm have long since disappeared. No one seems to recall how he met Ellen King or any facts concerning their short span of life together.

"William Edgar died at age 25 and is buried in the old Stanton Hill Cemetery, on the Robert King plot. The slab on his grave reads:

Wm. EDGAR STEARNS
Died Nov. 22, 1871
Age 25 yrs.

"The property he had purchased was not free of debt. In order to satisfy his debts, his widow, Ellen, sold the 94 acres at administrator's sale. It was purchased by Henry Stanton for $1490. Stanton, the same day, assigned the property to David H. Cole. Cole had married Eunice King, sister of Ellen. These records, which are recorded in the Wayne County Courthouse, show only the bare facts.

"Ellen A. King was born, twin to Elmer A. King, July 1, 1844, in Preston Twp. She married second, in 1874, Henry Hill.

"Henry Hill was born in Belfast, Ireland, in 1847. In 1862, as a lad of 15, he came to America with his brother, Thomas, who was only 22. He settled at Harford, Susquehanna Co., where he worked on a farm for nine years. In 1871 he went to work for W. G. Underwood of Lake Como, in the lumbering business. It was while working for Underwood, that he met and married Ellen. After his marriage to Ellen in 1874 he settled in Preston Twp., where he continued in the lumbering business. In 1879 he bought a farm near Preston Park. Two years later, he sold this farm and bought the 156 acre tract near Island Pond. He lumbered and cleared this Island Pond tract and built the buildings there. He was roadmaster for Starrucca Borough in 1890 and 1891, and roadmaster for Scott Twp. the next five years. He built many bridges in the northern part of the county[81].

Beth Greenwood Stearns was a teacher and homemaker which included the care of her parents and an aunt. "In the fall of 1969 Beth suffered a slight stroke and due to congestive heart failure and high blood pressure there was a series of such strokes, none of which crippled her but deprived her of memory of names. In the winter of 1972 her condition worsened and she entered the Forest Park Nursing Home in Carlisle, Penna. near my brother's residence. He and his wife were in frequent contact with her, and Clara Greenwood faithfully attended to her comfort as a supplement to the nursing care. I visited her at least once a month and tended to her expense account at the Home. Her condition grew gradually worse, and she died at the Home on May 18, 1973 and is buried in the Rolling Green Memorial Park beside our parents. She had moved from the North 26th Street address to an apartment, where she continued living with Clara Greenwood, my mother's great niece, and a Tingley descendant via Lynn Greenwood, son of Edward Greenwood who was my mother's brother and who married a Tingley."[539]

Richard was killed when struck by a Michigan Central Railroad train near his home on Kalamazoo St., near the railroad trestle. Richard was about 11 years of age.

The Battle Creek Journal reported that Richard and two small girls had been playing along the bridge and then when a train was approaching, the girls ran to safety.

Richard, however, laid down on the ties at the edge of the track, where he would have been safe. Instead, he jumped up and started to run, but it was too late. His body was thrown into the stream, the Battle Creek River.

Funeral services for the boy were held at the family home (the first house west of the Michigan Central crossing). Burial was made at the local Oak Hill Cemetery in lot No. 918, a single-burial lot[542].

316. Copy of Document sent by Lola Dudgeon to prove Jonathan's marriage to Elizabeth Broadwell follows: "At a Court of General Quarterly Sessions of the Peace held at Morristown in and for the County of Morris on Tues. the sixth day of July 1802, with five men listed as present.

"On the application of George Tucker and John D. Hart overseers of the poor of the Twp. of Hanover for the support of William Broadwell a pauper of the said Twp. of Hanover it is ordered by the Court that David Broadwell, Nathaniel Broadwell, William Broadwell, Azel Broadwell, Airy Broadwell, Ezra Broadwell, Susanna Beers the widow of John Beers, Johanna Carl wife of Abraham Carl, Elizabeth Tingley wife of Jonathan Tingley, sons and daughters of the said William Broadwell the pauper, pay severally and weekly to the said overseers of the poor of the said Twp. of Hanover for the support of the said William Broadwell the following sums of money, as stated, each of them weekly and every week, that is, as long as the said William Broadwell the pauper shall continue in need of that support or until the further order of this court." The original was found in the attic of an old Broadwell home in Northern N. Y. not far from Plattsburgh. The original document plus other papers were turned over to the local history department of Plattsburgh State Teachers' College. They were then turned over to the library - presumably the College Library. (See Appendix - Vol. I)

INSTRUCTIONS

Two types of numbers will be found in this book. One, the family number, consisting of seven digits. An example is 09-00716, where the 09 indicates that the family is of the ninth generation and the 00716 indicates that it is the 716th family of that generation. The second type of number, the number of an individual as a child, consists of nine digits. An example is 09-00716-03, where the 09 indicates that the individual is a child of a ninth generation family, the 00716 indicates that the individual is a child of the 716th family of that generation, and the 03 indicates that the individual is the 3rd child of that family. Birth dates will indicate whether or not the correct sequence of the children is known or was known (no birth date, or dates not in sequence, sequence was probably not known when listed).

The arrangement of the book is by family numbers. Immediately preceding each family, in the center of the line will be found the family number corresponding to that family. At the beginning of the paragraph describing a family will be found the number of the head of the family as a child. This enables one to trace a line back to the beginning, that is, back to Palmer.

Under each family those children appearing elsewhere as heads of families will have, following their birthdate, the family number of the family of which they are the head, or, if married to another Tingley descendant, that child may be the spouse in that family if not shown as the head of that family. This enables one to trace the descendants of an individual.

The numbers appearing in the index are family numbers. It will be noted that some of them have a prefix "S". Such a number following an individual's name in the index indicates that the person is not a Tingley descendant, but is a spouse of a Tingley descendant. Thus JAMES, Alice May S09-00716 was the wife of Robert Harvey Tingley, 08-00291-04 when he became head of family 09-00716. She is found in the paragraph just below the family number and before children are listed in the family.

When the number following an individual's name in the index has no "S" prefix that number is a family number under which the individual will be listed as a child. Thus, TINGLEY, Florence Josephine 09-00716 is found in the ninth generation, 716th family and is the third child shown.

To trace one's own line back to the beginning, that is, back to Palmer, one should start with his own name and the number which follows his name in the index. For example, TINGLEY, Donald Harvey 09-00716 will be found in the 9th generation, 716th family and is the 4th child. The number after his name here, as a child, tells where he will be found as head of a family, with his wife and the children, in the next generation. If no number is shown, he was not married (or it was not known) at the time the book went to press.

His father, at the beginning of the paragraph for family 09-00716 has a number preceding his name 08-00291-04. This says that he was the 4th child in the 291st family of the 8th generation, Robert Harvey Tingley. By looking up the 291st family of the 8th generation (Volume I) it will be found that Harvey is the 4th child and the number after his name there is 09-00716. Now to trace back farther repeat as before or see instructions on page 517 since you must now follow Volume I. For finding relationships between individuals see instructions in Volume I, page 518.

Adopted children and their lines are carried in italics to distinguish them from those of Tingley blood.

When a person was known by his middle name rather than his first name, that name is underlined.
